About German 101

Features of German 101:

- Short articles and dialogues in each chapter.
- Extra practice for each grammar concept.
- Links to an interactive video series that reviews grammar and vocabulary.
- Comic strips to promote interest, reading, and provide additional visual examples.
- Exercises for both in-class and out of class.
- Links to German music with grammar concepts. A range of songs from the 1980s to the present day is included to help introduce the music culture.
- Links to videos that reteach each grammar concept and pronounce new words.
- Oral Proficiency Interview practice at the end of each chapter with helpful tips.
- Quick upgrades as necessary. As feedback is received, more practice and videos will be added.

New words are introduced gradually in colored text boxes next to each concept. Sections can be combined or rearranged to make the desired chapter length. For example, if you wish to cover the alphabet on day one, simply do that section first. I've placed it in the middle of chapter one because I prefer to gradually introduce it along with pronunciation as I go so that students begin to speak quickly and don't grow disinterested. Every effort has been made to compare similarities and differences between English and German. Students whose native language is English can use that as a helpful resource to make learning German easier. English speakers, especially, tend to have trouble with the concept of cases. Therefore, I've taken the approach of focusing on the nominative case and present tense verb conjugations in chapter 1 with the accusative case in chapter 2. Chapter 3 reviews both cases and reinforces the old verbs with the imperative. The dative case will not be presented until German 102, to help prevent the mixing of these cases.

As for homework, I assign some activities from this textbook and put others on Canvas to be graded automatically. This textbook has links to many online sites with automatically graded exercises, such as www.germanzone.org. Deutsche Welle's video series, Nicos Weg, also has interactive online exercises whose scores can be saved online for homework grades. I also purchased Klett's 66 Wechselspiele and Treffpunkt Dialog as additional practice to promote speaking in the classroom.

Wie heißen Sie?

What's your name? How do you call

Ich heiße _____. My name is _____. I am called
_____.

ich = I heißen = to be called wie = how
Sie = you (polite)

How to pronounce the word "ich":
The vowel "i" in this word is pronounced like the "i" in the English word "it." Try to imitate a cat hissing softly to pronounce the "ch" sound → ich.

Freut mich! Nice to meet you!

Watch Anja's video to hear "Ich heiße _____" and "Wie heißen Sie?" being pronounced and to see her reteaching this lesson.

Tschüss! Bye!

Auf Wiedersehen! Good-bye!

Bis später! Until later!

Bis bald! Until soon!

Ex. A: Alles über Sie! Write a very brief paragraph introducing yourself to someone else. Don't forget to say hello and goodbye.

Du vs. Sie

In the examples above, you see the word Sie, which means “you.” German has two words for “you”—Sie and du. The chart and the comic strip list some instances when to use du or Sie.

Sie	du
People you don't know People you wish to treat with respect People who are older than you	Friends and family Children and pets God People your own age or younger

It may seem strange at first that there are two words for “you” in German. However, we actually have two ways to say “you” in English: thou and you. Thou is the English equivalent of German du. Nowadays, it has become old-fashioned, but we still see it in Shakespeare’s works and the King James Version of the Bible. Whenever you see the word “thou,” it is implied that the people are very close to one another or know each other very well.

Shakespeare's King Lear:

"Have more than thou showest, speak less than thou knowest, lend less than thou owest". - (Act I, Scene IV)

Bible, King James Version:

Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour.
(Exodus 20: 13-16)

For a more in-depth discussion on "du vs. Sie," feel free to watch Easy German's video–DU oder SIE?

Wie geht's?

To ask how someone is doing, use the following phrases:

- Wie geht's? How are you? (Lit. How goes it?)

You can use this phrase with anyone, whether formal or informal. You may be wondering why there is an apostrophe in the word geht's. This is a short form of "geht es." We use the apostrophe to show that the letter "e" has been left out.

- Wie geht es dir? How are you? (Informal)

Use this phrase when speaking to someone with whom you would use "du."

- Wie geht es Ihnen? How are you? (Formal)

Use this one when speaking to someone with whom you would use “Sie.”

Here are a few ways to answer this question.

Positive	Neutral	Negative
Gut! Ganz gut! Sehr gut! Super!	Es geht.	Nicht gut. Nicht so gut. Nicht sehr gut.

BEWARE! You may be tempted to answer with “Ich bin gut,” but in German it would mean that you are a good person, not that you are doing well. If you want to answer in a complete sentence, use, “Mir geht es gut!” (You will learn the grammar behind this phrase in a later chapter, but it can be memorized for now.)

Ex. C: Wie geht’s? Ask your classmates how they are?

A: Wie geht’s? (Alternative: Wie geht es dir?/Wie geht es Ihnen?)

B: (Use one of the answers above or come up with your own!)

Ex. D: Video: Nicos Weg. Folge 1: “Hallo!” Watch the video and do the online activities associated with it.

- <https://learngerman.dw.com/en/hallo/1-37250531>

Pronouns

You have already learned the pronouns Sie, du, and ich in German. Here are two more pronouns:

er→he sie→she(Easy way to remember; sie rhymes with “she.”)

Notice that the word for “she” and “you” are the same, EXCEPT that it is capitalized when it means “you.”

Er heißt Kevin.	He is called Kevin.
Sie heißt Jana.	She is called Jana.

Notice the endings:

- ich heiße
- er/sie heißt
- Sie heißen

German changes the ending of verbs according to the subject, i.e. ich, er/sie, Sie, etc. You will learn more about this later on in this chapter.

This comic was created at www.MakeBeliefsComix.com. Go there and make one now!

Ex. E: Wie heißt er? Wie heißt sie? Below are pictures of several well-known personalities. Wie heißen diese Menschen? Answer using a complete sentence.

diese Menschen = these people

2.

6.

We can take it one step further to use “er” and “sie” with the verbs “kommen” and “wohnen.”

Er kommt aus Kanada.

He comes from Canada.

Sie kommt aus Deutschland.

She comes from Germany.

Er wohnt in Berlin.

He lives in Berlin.

Sie wohnt in Zürich.

She lives in Zürich.

Ex. F: Woher kommen diese Leute? Wo wohnen sie? Using the cues below, write sentences describing where these people come from and where they now live.

Beispiel: Daniel, Australien, Japan.

Daniel kommt aus Australien, aber er wohnt in Japan.

(Daniel comes from Australia, but he lives in Japan.)

1. Jutta, Deutschland, Belgien
2. Marco, Argentinien, Finnland
3. Sophie, Frankreich, Italien

4. Katja, Luxemburg, Spanien
5. Peter, Deutschland, Irland
6. Erika, Österreich, Amerika
7. Konstantin, Russland, Polen
8. Eduardo, Mexiko, Guatemala

Ex. G: Dialogue. Read the following dialogue aloud. Then answer the questions about them in complete sentences.

der Mann—the man die Frau—the woman schon—already zwanzig—20
neu—new

Frau: Guten Tag!

Mann: Guten Tag!

Frau: Ich bin Rita. Und Sie? Wie heißen Sie?

Mann: Ich heiße Frank.

Frau: Freut mich! Ich bin neu hier. Ich komme aus München, aber jetzt wohne ich in Stuttgart.

Mann: Echt? Ich komme auch aus München, aber ich wohne schon zwanzig Jahre hier.

1. Wie heißt die Frau?
2. Wie heißt der Mann?
3. Woher kommt die Frau?
4. Woher kommt der Mann?
5. Wo wohnt die Frau jetzt?
6. Wo wohnt der Mann?

2. Section I-2

1-2: Definite Articles; Possession

Here are several objects that you might find in your classroom. Notice that they all begin with the definite article—der, die, or das. All of these mean the in English. Like many foreign languages, German nouns have a particular grammatical gender. It is best to learn new words together with the definite article.

die das } THE

der (masculine) die (feminine) das (neuter)

der Tisch
die Tür
das Heft

Nouns in German are always capitalized! The definite article (der/die/das) is always lowercase unless it is at the beginning of a sentence. Always capitalize the first word of each sentence.

What's a noun? A noun is a word that refers to a person, place, thing, or idea.

Possessive of proper names:

To show possession with proper names in German, add an -s to the end of the person's name. If the name already ends in an -s or an "s" sound, such as -z or -ß, we add a comma to the end.

Ist das Melanies Buch?

Ritas Handy ist neu.

Reiners Computer ist kaputt.

Thomas' Rucksack ist zu groß.

kaputt—worn out,
broken down groß—big, tall
neu—new

Ex. D: Dialog: Read the following dialogue between two young children and answer the questions about it in complete sentences.

Heidi: Hallo, Walter!

Walter: Tag, Heidi.

Heidi: Wessen Kuli ist das?

Walter: Hmm. Ich denke, das ist Hans' Kuli.

Heidi: Ach, ja! Das stimmt!
Und der Bleistift?

Walter: Das ist Inges Bleistift.

Heidi: Und der Filzstift? Wessen Filzstift ist das?

Walter: Aber Heidi! Das ist doch dein Filzstift!

wessen—whose ich denke—I think Das stimmt—That's right.
dein—your

1. Wessen Kuli ist das?
2. Wessen Bleistift ist das?
3. Wessen Filzstift ist das?

Farben (colors)

Below are several colors that will help you describe objects with the definite articles you have already learned.

rot 	gelb 	blau 	grün
lila 	braun 	schwarz 	weiß
rosa 	grau 	orange 	bunt—many-colored

To express different shades of these, use dunkel- or hell- affixed to the color. Do not add a space between the words.

dunkel + rot = dunkelrot hell + blau = hellblau

Beispiel:

- Der Bleistift ist gelb.
- Die Uhr ist schwarz und weiß.
- Das Heft ist dunkelgrau.
- Das Buch ist hellgrün.

dunkel—dark hell—light

“German flag” by fdecomite is marked with CC BY 2.0.

Die deutsche Fahne ist schwarz, rot und gold.

Ex. E: Welche Farbe hat das?

Ask each other about the colors of the items in your classroom.

A: Welche Farbe hat das Poster?

welche Farbe—which color/what color

B: Das Poster ist hellblau, gelb und rosa.

3. Section 1-3

1-3: Numbers and Pronunciation

eins—1	sieben—7
zwei—2	acht—8
drei—3	neun—9
vier—4	zehn—10
fünf—5	elf—11
sechs—6	zwölf—12

You will see several of the major vowel combinations in the German language in these numbers.

ei → pronounced like English “i”.

ie → pronounced like English “e”.

Why? Because when these two vowels go a’walking, the second does the talking.

Click the link to do some online listening practice with “ei” and “ie.”

<https://www.germanzone.org/sounds-german-ei-ie/>.

- eu → pronounced like the “oy” in the English word “toy.”
- ö → pronounced like the “ur” in the English word “turn” but without the r-sound.
- ü → pronounced like the “ew” in the English word “few” but with lips rounded and less of the w-sound.

There are also several consonants in these numbers that have different sounds from those in English.

- z → pronounced like the “ts” sound at the end of the English word “cats.”
- s → pronounced like an English “z” at the beginning of a word.
- v → pronounced like an English “f”.
- w → pronounced like an English “v”.

Ex. A: Aussprache. Practice each sound by saying the following words out loud. Refer to the pronunciation guide if you forget how they sound.

1. ei → eins, zwei, drei, heißen, Bleistift, Kugelschreiber, Einstein
2. ie → vier, sieben, Papier, Radiergummi
3. eu → neun, Euro, Feuer, teuer
4. ö → zwölf, Töchter, könnte
5. ü → fünf, Stück, München
6. z → zehn, zwölf, zwanzig
7. s → sechs, sieben, Rucksack, singen
8. v → vier, viel, von
9. w → was, wie, wo, wohin, zwölf

Numbers past 12 are similar to English. In English, we add -teen to the end of numbers 1-9. In German, we add -zehn to the end. Note a few minor spelling changes in the chart below.

13: drei + zehn = dreizehn

14: vier + zehn = vierzehn

dreizehn

vierzehn

fünfzehn

sechzehn (Note that „sechs“ loses the last „s“.)

siebzehn (Note that „sieben“ loses the last „en“.)

80: acht + zig = achtzig

90: neun + zig = neunzig

zwanzig
dreißig (Note that instead of -zig, 30 has -ßig.)
vierzig fünfzig
sechzig (Just like in “sechzehn,” 60 loses the final “s”.)
siebzig (Just like in „siebzehn,” 70 loses the final „en”.)
achtzig
neunzig

German compound numbers are constructed much like English numbers were hundreds of years ago.

Chaucer's
Canterbury Tales:
14th century

“At night was come in-to that hostelrye wel nyne and twenty in a companye”
(nine-and-twenty)

English nursery rhyme: 16th-17th centuries

“Sing a song of sixpence,
A pocket full of rye.
Four-and-twenty blackbirds
Baked in a pie.”

Jane Austen's Pride and Prejudice: 1813

“Mr. Bennet was so odd a mixture of quick parts, sarcastic humour, reserve, and caprice, that the experience of three and twenty years had been insufficient to make his wife understand his character. ”

21 → einundzwanzig (one and twenty)

22 → zweiundzwanzig (two and twenty)

23 → dreiundzwanzig (three and twenty)

...etc.

31 → einunddreißig (one and thirty)

32 → zweiunddreißig (two and thirty)

...etc.

Note that German does NOT have a space between the individual numbers. Write them all together as one long word.

Hundreds and thousands are expressed in German much like in English. Once again, do not leave a space between individual numbers. Put them all together to make one long word.

300: drei + hundert = dreihundert

4000: vier + tausend = viertausend

hundert	tausend
zweihundert	zweitausend
dreihundert	dreitausend
vierhundert	viertausend
fünfhundert	fünftausend
sechshundert	sechstausend
siebenhundert	siebentausend
achthundert	achttausend
neunhundert	neuntausend

If you have a particularly long number, take it in steps.

Beispiel: 7529

Step 1: siebentausend

Step 2: fünfhundert

Step 3: neunundzwanzig

Now put it together: siebentausendfünfhundertneunundzwanzig

Like many German words, numbers are compound words without any spaces in between.

→ sieben|tausend|fünf|hundert|neun|und|zwanzig

Ex. D: Lange Zahlen. Write out the following numbers.

1. 835
2. 399
3. 628
4. 339
5. 521
6. 1953
7. 4388
8. 9644
9. 7523

1-4: Adjectives and Negation

Many German adjectives that you might use to describe yourself are similar to English. The left-hand column lists several of these that you should easily be able to recognize without a dictionary. The right-hand column lists some that might not be as easy to understand at first glance.

athletisch	liberal
clever	miserabel
elegant	modern exzentrisch	naiv fantastisch
fit	objektiv
flexibel	optimistisch
intelligent	pessimistisch
interessant	progressiv
kompetent	sentimental
konservativ	subjektiv
kreativ	sarkastisch
kritisch	super alt—old arm—poor faul—lazy fleißig—hardworking freundlich—friendly gesund—healthy groß—tall jung—young klein—small komisch—strange, odd krank—sick langweilig—boring

 müde—tired pünktlich—punctual, on time reich—rich

Ich bin optimistisch, exzentrisch und fleißig.

English negates adjectives by placing the word “not” in front of them. Similarly, German does this as well with the word nicht. Place nicht in front of an adjective to negate it.

Ich bin nicht faul.

I am not lazy.

5. Section 1-5

1-5: Pronouns in the Nominative Case

You have already learned the pronouns ich, du, and Sie. Here are the rest of the nominative case pronouns.

The nominative case refers to subject pronouns—those pronouns that refer to the person or thing doing the action of the sentence. They usually come at the beginning of a sentence (but not always!!!). In future chapters, you will learn other cases, but for now, know that “nominative” refers to the subject of the sentence.

Singular	Plural
ich—I	wir—we
du—you (familiar)	ihr—you (plural, familiar); y'all
er—he sie—she es—it	sie—they Sie—you (formal)

Notes on capitalization:

The word “ich” is never capitalized, as it is in English, unless it is at the beginning of a sentence.

- Du und ich kommen aus Nordamerika.
- Ich wohne in Aachen.

Listen to Franzi Harmsen’s song Nein to hear examples of the pronouns ich and du as well as a few numbers you learned in Section 1-3.

One or more interactive elements has been excluded from this version of the text. You can view them online here: <https://una.pressbooks.pub/gr101/?p=490#oembed-1>

The formal way of saying “you,” Sie, is ALWAYS capitalized, no matter where it is in the sentence because it shows respect.

Watch Learn German’s video to see a detailed explanation of German pronouns in the nominative case.

One or more interactive elements has been excluded from this version of the text. You can view them online here: <https://una.pressbooks.pub/gr101/?p=490#oembed-2>

What is a pronoun? A pronoun is a word that is substituted in for a noun.

We often substitute nouns for pronouns in everyday speech.

A: Is the pencil new?

B: Yes, it is new.

In the above example, we substituted in “it” for “the pencil.” In German, however, we must look at the grammatical gender of the word to pick the correct pronoun.

A: Ist der Bleistift neu?

B: Ja, er ist neu.

- der Tisch→er (rhymes with „der“)
- die Tafel→sie (rhymes with „die“)
- das Fenster→es (shares an “s” at the end of both words)

The easiest way to do this is to look at the definite article (der/die/das). It will tell you which pronoun to use. It may seem strange to refer to der Kuli, a pen, for example, as “he,” but in German, it sounds normal.

Video. Replacing Nouns with Pronouns. Watch the video to see me reteaching this.

B: Nein, sie ist nicht schwarz. Sie ist grau.

A: Ist der Professor groß?

B: Ja, er ist groß.

1. Tisch, braun
2. Heft, rot
3. Wand, weiß
4. Poster, groß
5. Buch, langweilig
6. Kuli, alt
7. Landkarte, bunt
8. Computer, neu
9. Student, interessant

Ex. C: Er, sie, es? Substitute in with the pronoun that should take the place of each underlined noun in each conversation below.

Beispiel:

A: „Ist die Wand grau?“

B: „Ja, _____ ist grau.“

“Ja, sie ist grau.“

draußen = outside
wie = how

- A: Wo ist der Stuhl?
- B: _____ ist draußen.
- A: Wie ist das Buch?
- B: _____ ist nicht sehr interessant.
- A: Ist die Landkarte sehr bunt?
- B: Nein, _____ ist nicht sehr bunt.
- A: Wohnt der Professor in New York?
- B: Nein, _____ wohnt nicht in New York. Er wohnt in München.
- A: Kommt der Computer aus Japan?
- B: Nein, _____ kommt nicht aus Japan. Er kommt aus China.

- A: Heißt der Student Dieter?
- B: Ja, _____ heißt Dieter.
- A: Ist die Uhr modern?
- B: Nein, _____ ist sehr alt.
- A: Kommt der Rucksack aus Amerika?
- B: Nein, _____ kommt aus Finnland.
- A: Wohnt die Studentin in Deutschland?

6. Section I-6

1-6: The Verb “sein”

So far, you have been using the German verb “sein” to describe people and things.

sein = to be

Sein is one of the two most important verbs in the German language. You will use it in future chapters to make compound verb tenses. For now, you will learn it in the present tense.

In German, sein is an irregular verb, which means you must memorize its conjugation.

As native English speakers learning German, we often don't recognize the conjugation of the English verb “to be” because we learned it as part of our native language. Whenever you see is, am, or are, those are forms of “to be.”

sein—to be

ich bin—I am	wir sind—we are du bist—you are (informal)	ihr seid—you (plural) are; y'all are
er/sie/es ist—he/she/it is	sie/Sie sind—they are; you (polite)

Beispiele: The verb form of „sein“ is highlighted below. Notice that the subject, i.e. the person or thing doing the action, is the word that determines which form of “sein” you will use. The subject is in italics, and the verb is bold-faced.

- Ich bin nicht pünktlich. (I am not punctual.)
- Du bist sehr freundlich. (You are very friendly.)
- Er ist Professor. (He is a professor.)
- Sie ist Lehrerin. (She is a teacher.)
- Es ist kalt. (It is cold.)
- Wir sind nicht sehr groß. (We are not very tall.)

- Ihr seid progressiv. (You guys/y'all are progressive.)
- Sie sind athletisch. (They are athletic.)

Ex. A: Conjugating “sein”

Fill in the blanks with the correct form of the verb sein. You will need to look at the subject of the sentence to decide which form of sein is best.

1. Heute_____nicht Donnerstag.

Common trouble spots:

In the exercise to your left, students often make mistakes on the following questions:

#7 „Der Professor und der Student“ is plural, aka. they. Look next to „sie“ plural on the chart to conjugate it.

#10 „Maria und ich,“ Maria and I, is the same thing as “we,” aka “wir,” Look next to “wir” on your verb chart to find the answer.

2. Wir_____sehr modern.
3. Mein T-shirt_____blau.
4. Ihr_____Studenten aus Amerika.
5. Der Tisch_____braun.
6. Frau Braun,_____Sie sehr pessimistisch?
7. Der Professor und der Student_____in Biologie.
8. Du_____sehr kreativ!
9. Ich_____nicht sehr athletisch.
10. Maria und ich_____müde.

Ex. B: Sein! In the sentences below, the verb “sein” has already been conjugated. Fill in with a subject pronoun that will correctly complete the sentence. Hint: Look at the verb, then compare it with the conjugated chart of “sein.” Some answers may vary.

Beispiel: _____ bist sehr sarkastisch!

→Du bist sehr sarkastisch!

wieder—again

1. _____ ist kompetent.
2. _____ bist müde.
3. _____ sind sehr fleißig.
4. _____ bin wieder krank.
5. _____ seid exzentrisch aber cool.

Das Wetter

You can also use the verb sein to describe the weather.

A: Wie ist das Wetter im Winter in Berlin?

B: Es ist meistens kalt.

kalt—cold heiß—hot kühl—cool warm—warm windig—windy regnerisch—rainy neblig—foggy sonnig—sunny wolkig—cloudy schlecht—bad heiter—clear gut—good meistens—mostly

Ex. G: Wiederholung!

So far, you have learned how to introduce yourself, say where you live, and describe yourself as well as others. In the space below, write a brief description of yourself and two of your friends. If you can't think of what to write, here are a few suggestions: name, where you come from, where you live, how the weather is in your area, your age, a few adjectives to describe yourself, etc.

1. (yourself)
2. (friend 1)
3. (friend 2)

Now go back and reread what you wrote. Did you remember to put “aus” after “kommen?” (i.e. come from?) Did you remember to put “in” after “wohnen”? (i.e. live in?)

7. Section 1-7

1-7: The Verb haben—to have

You have already learned how to conjugate the verb sein, to be. The next verb you will learn is haben, to have. Both haben and sein are the two most important verbs in the German language. Not only are they very common in everyday speech, but they will also be used in future chapters to form the past tense.

Here is the verb haben conjugated for all forms. It is slightly irregular in the du and er/sie/es, so you will need to memorize their conjugations.

ich habe	wir haben
du hast	ihr habt
er/sie/es hat	sie/Sie haben

- Ich habe im September Geburtstag.
- Du hast das Buch.
- Er hat morgen Biologie.
- Sie hat das Papier.
- Wir haben Psychologie am Montag.
- Ihr habt eine Katze.
- Sie haben im März Geburtstag.

English previously used similar forms of the verb “to have” centuries ago. We can see this in Shakespeare’s sonnets.

Sonnet 9: That thou no form of thee hast left behind→ Du hast.

Sonnet 148: O me! What eyes hath Love put in my head→ Er/sie/es hat.

In the box below is a list of classes that you may have right now. Most of them are very similar to English.

Deutsch	Englisch	Spanisch
Mathematik	Geschichte	Psychologie
Kunst	Biologie	Physik
Sport	Geographie	Soziologie
Französisch	Musik	Chemie

Ex. A: Kurse. Talk with a partner about your schedule for today (heute) and tomorrow (morgen).

welche Kurse—which courses

A: Welche Kurse hast du heute?

B: Ich habe heute _____ und _____.

A: Welche Kurse hast du morgen?

B: Ich habe morgen _____ und _____.

Days of the Week

You can also use the days of the week with the verb haben to describe your schedule.

Notice that the days of the week have certain patterns.

- All but Mittwoch end in the word Tag, day.
- Mittwoch literally means “midweek.”
- Where we see the letters “t” or “th” in English, there is often a “d” in German.
→ Dienstag (Tuesday);
Donnerstag (Thursday)

Montag—Monday
Dienstag—Tuesday
Mittwoch—Wednesday
Donnerstag—Thursday
Freitag—Friday
Samstag—Saturday
Sonntag—Sunday

Switching “t” and “th” with “d” (and vice versa) in German works with lots of words. You can use this to help you remember new vocabulary in German. Here are a few more examples:

- drei→three
- denken→think
- die→the
- du—thou
- Tür—door
- Tag—day

If you want to learn more about this, look up the 2nd High German Consonant Shift (zweite hochdeutsche Lautverschiebung) online.

To say that you do something on a certain day, use the preposition am before the day.

am Mittwoch→on Wednesday am Samstag→on Saturday

am Dienstag→on Tuesday

Ex. B: Wann hat Philipp Chemie? Answer the questions about Philipp's schedule in complete sentences, using the verb haben and the days of the week.

Montag	Dienstag	Mittwoch	Donnerstag	Freitag
Biologie Musik	Deutsch Chemie Deutsch	Biologie	Deutsch Chemie Musik	Biologie Deutsch

Beispiel: Wann hat Philipp Spanisch?

→Philipp hat am Samstag Spanisch.

1. Wann hat Philipp Biologie?
2. Wann hat er Chemie?
3. Wann hat er Deutsch?
4. Wann hat er Spanisch?
5. Wann hat er Musik?
6. Wann hat er frei?
7. Was hat Philipp am Montag?
8. Was hat Philipp am Dienstag?
9. Was hat Philipp am Mittwoch?
10. Was hat Philipp am Donnerstag?
11. Was hat Philipp am Freitag?
12. Was hat Philipp am Samstag?
13. Was hat Philipp am Sonntag?

Ex. C: Now answer the questions about your own schedule in complete sentences. If you don't have anything on a certain day, you can always say, "Ich habe frei."

1. Was haben Sie am Montag?
2. Was haben Sie am Dienstag?
3. Was haben Sie am Mittwoch?
4. Was haben Sie am Donnerstag?
5. Was haben Sie am Freitag?
6. Was haben Sie am Samstag?

1. arbeiten
2. Bergfest
3. Sport
4. Flohmarkt
5. Wasser
6. Kino
7. Frühstück

The months of the year are very similar in German.

Januar	Februar	März	April
Mai	Juni	Juli	August
September	Oktober	November	Dezember

Note a few differences in pronunciation:

- The letter “j” in German is pronounced like a “y” in English.
- The letter “ä” in German is pronounced like the first “e” in the word “ever.”
- In the word “August,” the 2nd syllable is stressed: au-GUST

Watch out!

So far, you have seen two very similar words in German that both mean “in”: in and im. For now, ONLY use im with months and seasons. In a later chapter, you will learn the difference between these two words.

To say that you do something in a certain month, use the word im in front of the month.

- im Januar—in January
- im Oktober—in October
- im Juli—in July

Wann hat Ingrid Geburtstag? When does Ingrid have a birthday?

Sie hat im September Geburtstag. She has a birthday in September.

Karneval ist im Februar oder im März.

8. Section 1-8

1-8: Plurals

So far, you have learned that German nouns have a grammatical gender (der, die or das). Now you will learn how to make them plural. In English, we usually add an -s or -es to the end of the word:

- book→books
- computer→computers
- hobby→hobbies

In German, however, there are several different endings to form plurals. You will need to learn the plural form when you learn new words. The dictionary form of German nouns will show letters that come after the noun. These should be added to the word to form the plural.

75-90% of masculine and neuter nouns add -e

- der Tisch, -e→die Tische
- das Papier, -e→die Papiere
- das Heft, -e→die Hefte
- der Filzstift, -e→die Filzstifte

Occasionally, these words will add an umlaut in addition to -e.

- der Stuhl, -"e→die Stühle
- der Rucksack, -"e→ die Rucksäcke

75-90% of feminine nouns add -n or -en.

- die Tafel, -n→die Tafeln
- die Uhr, -en→die Uhren
- die Landkarte, -n→die Landkarten

- die Tür→die Türen
- die Tasche→die Taschen

Occasionally, these words will add an umlaut in addition to -n or -en.

- die Maus, -"e→die Mäuse
- die Wand, -"e→die Wände

Feminine words ending in -in that denote people also add -en or -n but add an extra -n- between the noun and the plural ending.

- die Professorin, -nen→die Professorinnen
- die Studentin, -nen→die Studentinnen
- die Lehrerin, -nen→die Lehrerinnen

Shortened forms and borrowed words tend to add an -s.

- das Handy→die Handys
- der Kuli→die Kulis
- der Laptop→die Laptops
- der Gummi→die Gummis
- das Hobby→die Hobbys
- das Auto→die Autos

Masculine and neuter words that end in -er often do not add anything to form the plural, especially words denoting people.

- der Lehrer, - →die Lehrer
- der Wischer, - →die Wischer
- der Kugelschreiber, - →die Kugelschreiber
- das Poster, - →die Poster
- der Computer, - →die Computer

A smaller percentage will simply have to be memorized. As always, the dictionary entry will show how to make the plural.

- der Professor, -en→die Professoren
- der Student, -en→die Studenten
- das Buch, -er→die Bücher

Note that the definite article of every German plural automatically becomes die, whether it is masculine, feminine, or neuter.

- der Tisch BUT die Tische

History of the English language:

You may be thinking that it is unnatural to add anything besides an -s or -es to plurals, as we do in English. However, English has plenty of irregular plurals...and this used to be the rule instead of the exception. Here are a few that we still use today that have Germanic roots.

English adds an “umlaut.” An umlaut is as a change in the vowel sound. German adds two dots above the vowel to show this. English does not; English writes the change as a different vowel.

- mouse→mice
- foot→feet
- goose→geese
- louse→lice
- man→men
- woman→women

English adds no ending.

- moose→moose
- deer→deer
- sheep→sheep

English adds -en.

- ox→oxen
- child→children

English changes final -f to -v + es.

- wife→wives
- roof→rooves

<https://youtu.be/3Aqc5WDKO9A>

Ex. A: Wie viele haben wir? Make a tally of how many of the following things you see in the room. Then form a complete sentence using the verb haben, the number, and the plural form of the item. If you have none of the items, write the word "keine" in front of the noun plural, i.e. "no items."

Beispiel: der Bleistift

→Wir haben fünfzehn Bleistifte.

der Laptop

→Wir haben keine Laptops.

1. der Stuhl
2. der Tisch
3. das Fenster
4. die Uhr
5. das Buch
6. das Heft
7. die Wand
8. die Tafel
9. der Student
10. das Heft
11. der Kuli
12. der Bleistift
13. der Computer

Ex. B: Wir üben! Give both the singular and plural forms of the words below, including the definite articles.

Beispiel: board

→die Tafel, die Tafeln

1. table
2. door
3. paper
4. cell phone
5. chair
6. pencil
7. pen
8. notebook
9. backpack
10. book
11. board
12. window
13. clock
14. computer
15. laptop
16. mouse
17. eraser (on a pencil)
18. poster
19. map
20. professor (male)
21. professor (female)
22. student (male)
23. student (female)
24. wall
25. whiteboard eraser
26. purse/bag

Ex. C: Die Familie. Here are some words denoting family members and their plurals. Practice making plurals with them.

- die Mutter, –“ (mother)
- die Schwester, –n (sister)
- der Vater, –“ (father)
- der Bruder, –“ (brother)
- die Tochter, –“ (daughter)
- der Sohn, –“e (son)
- der Onkel, – (uncle)
- die Tante, – n (aunt)

Compound nouns

Like English, German frequently uses compound nouns.

Wasser + Fall = Wasserfall

Hand + Schuh = Handschuh

(Water) + (Fall) = (Waterfall)

(hand)+(shoe)= glove

In English, sometimes these compound nouns are written all as one word, but other times they are written with a space in between.

football BUT swimming pool

(no space)

(space between words)

In German, compound nouns are never written with a space.

Fußball

Schwimmbad

This is why German often gets the reputation of having long words. Many long German words are nothing more than smaller words put together as compound nouns. Several words denoting family members follow this pattern.

- die Großmutter
- der Großvater
- die Urgroßmutter
- der Urgroßvater
- die Halbschwester
- der Halbbruder

- die Stiefmutter
- der Stiefvater
- die Stiefschwester
- der Stiefbruder

The definite article (der/die/das) will be the same as the LAST word in the compound noun. For example, “die Halbschwester” is still feminine because the last word in the compound, “Schwester,” is feminine. No matter how many words make up a compound word, the gender is ALWAYS determined by the last word.

Notice that we add the following prefixes to make other words:

groß—big/grand ur—great halb—half stief—step

9. Section 1-9

1-9: Indefinite Articles (Ein/eine) and “Kein/Keine”

You have already learned the definite article (der/die/das) of each word in this chapter so far. Now we’re going to add indefinite articles.

An indefinite article in English is the word “a” or “an.” In German, you will use “ein” or “eine,” depending on the gender of the noun. This is why it is important to learn the gender along with the noun.

masculine/neuter→ein (der/das)

feminine→eine (die)

plural→leave blank
(die)

Masculine and neuter add no ending.

Feminine adds an -e to match the end of “die.”

Plural is left blank because you can’t say, for example, “I have a books.” Rephrase to say, “I have books”→Ich habe Bücher.

Beispiele:

- die Schwester→eine Schwester (Feminine adds -e).
- der Bruder→ein Bruder (Masculine adds nothing).
- die Tafel→eine Tafel (Feminine adds -e).
- der Stuhl→ein Stuhl (Masculine adds nothing).
- das Poster→ein Poster (Neuter adds nothing).
- das Handy→ein Handy (Neuter adds nothing).

Ex. B: Ein. Eine. Go to Germanzone.org's website and do the activity using ein-words and classroom items.

- <https://www.germanzone.org/indefinite-article-ein-1-classroom-objects/>.

German also has a word to express „not a.“ To negate “ein/eine,” you will use the word “kein” or “keine” in front of the noun, depending on its gender.

Masculine/neuter→kein

- kein Computer (not a computer/no computer)
- kein Poster (not a poster/no poster)
- kein Professor (not a professor/no professor)

Feminine→keine

- keine Tür (not a door/no door)
- keine Studentin (not a student/no student)
- keine Uhr (not a clock/no clock)

Plural→keine

- keine Kulis
- keine Studenten

COMMON MISTAKE: You may be tempted to say “nicht ein,” (not a), as you would in English. This is incorrect. You should use “kein” or “keine” instead.

INCORRECT: Das ist ~~nicht ein~~ Kuli. INCORRECT!!!

CORRECT: Das ist kein Kuli.

Ex. C: Ist das ein Kuli? Practice with your classmates, using both ein/eine and kein/keine to describe words around the room.

A: Ist das ein Kuli?

B: Nein, das ist kein Kuli. Das ist ein Bleistift.

B: Ist das eine Professorin?

A: Nein, das ist keine Professorin. Das ist eine Studentin.

10. Section 1-10

1-10: The Alphabet (Das Alphabet)

You already know how most of the letters in the German alphabet are pronounced. Here is the official German alphabet. It has the same 26 letters that English has with four additional letters: ä, ö, ü, and ß.

a—ah	k—kah	u—ooo
b—beh	l—ell	v—fau
c—tseh	m—emm	w—veh
d—deh	n—enn	x—eeks
e—eh	o—oh	y—üpppsilon
f—eff	p—peh	z—tsett
g—geh	q—coo	ß—ess tsett
h—hah	r—err	ä—apple
i—eee	s—ess	ö—girl
j—yott	t—teh	ü—beautiful

Notes on pronunciation:

Here are a few differences from English, which have not already been mentioned in previous sections.

- J is pronounced like English “y”.
- L is pronounced slightly different from English with the tongue touching the back of the teeth.
- ß is pronounced like a double “ss”. It is never found at the beginning of a word.
- Ä is pronounced like the “a” in “apple” or the “e” in “ever.”
- Ö is pronounced like the “ir” in “girl” except with less of an “r” sound.
- Ü is pronounced similar to the “eau” in the word “beautiful” but with rounded lips.

II. Section I-II

1-11: Present Tense—Regular Verbs

So far, you have learned how to conjugate the verbs sein and haben, the two most important verbs in the German language. Both of them are irregular, and their conjugations had to be memorized. Most other verbs in German are not irregular and have a set pattern of endings.

What is verb conjugation in English? Putting certain endings on verbs so that they match up with their subjects!

As a native English speaker, you may not realize that you conjugate verbs every day when speaking. Compare the following sentences:

- I play basketball. (No ending on “play”)
- She plays basketball. (-s at end of “play”)

If you grew up learning English, you probably don’t notice that you automatically do this; you naturally can sense what sounds correct when speaking.

Below are some common regular verbs in their infinitive form (aka. unconjugated form. All German infinitives end in -en (99% of all verbs) or -n (<1%).

heißen	gehen	lernen
reisen	spielen	joggen
kochen	machen	fotografieren
wandern	wohnen	singen
arbeiten	bleiben	studieren
fragen	spazieren	schwimmen
tanzen	sagen	kommen
schreiben	hören	finden
malen	zeichnen	fliegen

You have already memorized a few phrases that had conjugated verbs in them. You may have wondered why the ending of the verb changed in different sentences.

- Ich komme aus Berlin. I come from Berlin.
- Er wohnt in England. He lives in England.
- Sie heißt Sophia. She is called Sophia.

The infinitive (unconjugated form) of each verb has two parts. We will use the verb lernen as an example.

Stem: lern-

Ending: -en

In German, the following verb endings are used for the present tense of regular verbs.

ich→-e	wir→-en (same as infinitive)
du→ -st	ihr→ -t
er/sie/es→ -t	sie/Sie→ -en (same as infinitive)

History of the English Language:

Note these Germanic verb endings on Shakespeare’s sonnets.

Sonnet 3: Look in thy glass, and tell the face thou viewest. (du)

Sonnet 10: For shame deny that thou bear’st love to any. (du)

Sonnet 147: For that which longer nurseth the disease... (er/sie/es)

How to conjugate a German verb.

Step 1: Take off the ending (-en or -n).

Step 2: Add a new ending that matches the subject.

Let’s try it with a few verbs from the list.

Conjugate reisen for “ich.”	Conjugate singen for “du.”
Step 1: Take off the -en→ reis-	Step 1: Take off the -en →
Step 2: Add the new ending→ -e	Step 2: Add the new ending
Conjugated verb: Ich reise.	Conjugated verb: Du singst.

2. fotografieren—to take pictures

ich	wir

er/sie/es	sie/Sie

3. wandern—to hike (think „wander” around)

ich	wir

4. hören—to hear, listen to

ich	wir
du	ihr
er/sie/es	sie/Sie

The present tense in German is equivalent to three different ways of expressing the present tense in English. The sentence “Ich lerne Deutsch” could be translated as follows.

1. I learn German.
2. I am learning German.
3. I do learn German.

COMMON MISTAKE: As English speakers, we tend to translate word-for-word into German. This can lead to mistakes in German, because German does not have the present progressive tense (i.e. is learning, am dancing, are playing). Often, that results in the following mistake:

ENGLISH→I am playing.

WRONG→ Ich ~~bin~~ spielen.←WRONG

CORRECT→Ich spiele.

Whenever you want to translate something into German that has is/am/are + verb+ing in English, reword it so that it sounds simpler.

- He is hiking.
- REPHRASE TO He hikes.
- Translates to Er wandert.

Ex. C: Auf Deutsch! Translate the following sentences into German.
Rephrase into simpler English if necessary.

1. We are living in Germany.
2. He is writing a book.
3. I am learning German.
4. She is sarcastic.
5. They are hiking.
6. You guys are studying computer science.

Studieren vs. lernen:

The verbs studieren and lernen are often confused because they sound so much like verbs in English.

studieren—to study
as a major or minor;
to go to college

lernen—to learn; to study for a test or quiz

Beispiele:

- Ich lerne Japanisch.

I am learning

- Wo studierst du? Where do you go to college?
- Er lernt für ein Deutschquiz. He is studying for a German quiz.
- Sabine studiert Musik. Sabine is majoring in music.

Ex. D: Using the subjects listed below, talk with a partner about whether you are majoring in these subjects or just learning them this semester (or in your free time.)

A: Was studierst du?
B: Ich studiere _____ (und _____.)
B: Was lernst du?
A: Ich lerne _____.
A/B: Ich studiere _____.
Ich lerne _____, _____
und _____.

Beispiel: du/lernen/Musik
→Du lernst Musik.

Nach vs. zu

The verbs reisen, gehen, fliegen, kommen, and joggen are verbs of motion. You can use them to say where you plan to go.

- To say that you are going to a city, state, country, or home, use the preposition nach.

Wir reisen nach Dänemark. (country)

Er fliegt nach Hause. (home)

- To say that you are going to see a person or a business with a proper name, use the preposition zu.

Wir gehen zu Lena. (person)

Der Student joggt zu Aldi. (store's proper name)

- To say that you are at home (i.e., notgoing home) use the expression “zu Hause.”

Morgen bleiben wir zu Hause.(at home)

Ich arbeite zu Hause. (at home)

COMMON MISTAKE!!!

Students often confuse the word das Haus with the phrases „zu Hause“ and „nach Hause.“ Whenever you are talking about a house, use “das Haus.” If you are talking about going home or being at home, use “nach Hause” or “zu Hause.” The -e at the end of these phrases comes from German several centuries ago. It is only used in these two phrases.

Ex. F: Nach vs. zu. Choose nach or zu for the following sentences.

1. Meine Familie reist nächstes Jahr _____ Europa.
2. Meine Schwester reist _____ Spanien, aber mein Bruder bleibt _____ Hause.
3. Ich gehe _____ Johanna.
4. Der Student joggt _____ Hause.
5. Frau Blechschmidt fliegt _____ Utah.
6. Der Mann arbeitet _____ Hause.
7. Bleibst du _____ Hause, oder gehst du _____ Wal-Mart?
8. Lena und Martin reisen im Sommer _____ Italien.
9. Viele Studenten gehen oft _____ Starbucks.

Ex. G: Wohin gehen Sie? Using the cues provided, make sentences. Decide whether it is best to use nach or zu. Don't forget to conjugate the verb for the subject.

Beispiel: Bettina/gehen/Lucas
→ Bettina geht zu Lucas.

1. er/reisen/Polen
2. sie (pl.)/gehen/Hause
3. wir/bleiben/Hause
4. ihr/kommen/Alex
5. die Professoren/gehen/
Aldi
6. ich/fliegen/Irland
7. mein Vater/reisen/Houston

Verbs with stems ending in -d or -t.

If a verb's stem ends in -d or -t, often an extra "e" gets added to its conjugation in the du and er/sie/es form to make it easier to pronounce.

- arbeiten Du arbeitest. Er arbeitet.

If this extra -e- were not added between the stem and the ending, it would be very hard to pronounce.

INCORRECT → Du arbeitst. Er arbeitt. ← INCORRECT!!

- finden Er findet Deutsch cool.
- schneiden Ihr schneidet das Papier.

interessant—interesting wichtig—important praktisch—practical

Ex. I: Wo arbeitet er? Use the cues below to make sentences about where the following people work.

Beispiel: Matthias/Target

→Matthias arbeitet bei

Target.

bei—at

1. Lena/Wal-Mart
2. Kevin/McDonald's
3. Elena/Burger King
4. du/Starbucks

5. wir/Lowe's
6. ihr/Pizza Hut

Ex. J: Verbkonjugationen! Fill in the blanks with the correct form of the conjugated verb. Make sure to look at the subject to see which verb ending it should match up with. (Watch out! "Sein" is also included!)

1. Der Student _____ sehr gut. (singen)
2. Ich _____ Basketball, Golf und Tennis. (spielen)
3. Du _____ heute. (arbeiten)
4. Wir _____ Deutsch. (lernen)
5. Ich _____ Deutsch und Spanisch. (studieren)
6. _____ du morgen zu Andreas? (gehen)
7. Sie (pl.) _____ sehr egoistisch und exzentrisch. (sein)
8. Ihr _____ Italienisch interessant. (finden)
9. Markus und ich _____ in Berlin. (wohnen)
10. _____ ihr immer so pessimistisch? (sein)
11. Ich _____ in Eile! (sein)

Verbs with stems that end in an "s" sound.

Verbs whose stems end in -ß or -z, often don't add the "s" from -st when conjugated for "du."

Beispiel: du/heißen→Du heißt.

(NOT „Du heißtst“ because „ß“ is the same as „ss.“ That would give us „Du heisstst“—too many of the letter “s”!)

Beispiel: du/tanzen→Du tanzt.

(NOT „Du tanzst“ because „z“ already makes an „s“ sound.)

Gern + infinitive

To say that you like to do something, add gern to the conjugated verb.

Ich zeichne. BUT Ich zeichne gern.

(I sketch.)

(I like to sketch.)

Erika spielt Tuba. BUT

Erika spielt gern Tuba.

(Erika plays tuba.)

(Erika likes to play tuba.)

Mein Bruder tanzt. BUT

Mein Bruder tanzt gern.

(My brother dances.)

(My brother likes to dance.)

Officially, the word gern is an adverb that means “gladly,” but we translate it in common English to mean “like to.”

Just as we negate adjectives by putting nicht in front of them, we do the same for adverbs. To negate gern, we put the word nicht in front of it.

Ich tanze nicht gern. (I don't like to dance.)

Basketball	Golf	Volleyball
Tennis	Fußball	Hockey
Baseball	Klavier—piano	Tuba
Trompete	Gitarre	Flöte
Schlagzeug—drum	Klarinette	Saxophon
Geige—violin	Videospiele—video games

The verb spielen can be used with sports, instruments, and games.

Ex. N. Was spielen Sie gern? Was spielen Sie nicht gern?

Ich spiele gern _____. Ich spiele nicht gern _____.

Ex. O: Konjugieren wir Verben! Fill in with the correct form of the verb in parenthesis. Don't forget to look at the subject first and then decide which verb ending you will need. (Watch out! Sein and haben will show up as well, but they are irregular!)

12. Section 1-12

1-12: Nominative Case and Word Order

German has four cases: nominative, accusative, dative, and genitive. A “case” in German basically tells what the word does in a sentence. In this chapter, you are learning the nominative case. The nominative case deals with the subject of the sentence—the person or thing doing the action of the sentence.

Nominative case = subject

The subject is the word that does the action of the sentence. It is also the word that determines how you conjugate the verb, i.e. which endings you will put on the end of the verb from the verb chart. The subject of each sentence is highlighted below.

- Ich habe im März Geburtstag.
- Frau Schmidt ist nicht sehr optimistisch.
- Der Student kommt aus Saudi-Arabien.
- Meine Mutter spielt gern Klavier.
- Das Wetter ist kalt und regnerisch.
- Marions Großmutter geht morgen ins Restaurant.

In all of these examples, the subject came first in each sentence, and the verb came second. This word order is often seen in German sentences. This is also how we often form sentences in English.

Subject/verb/everything else.

HOWEVER, in German, the subject does not have to come first as long as the verb stays in second position.

RULE: The verb in German statements must come in 2nd position.

The following examples have the verb in 2nd position, but some of them have a time expression at the beginning instead of the subject. The verb is bold-faced, and the subject is in italics. To the right is an alternate word order that might make more sense for English speakers.

- Morgen reisen wir nach Europa. (Wir reisen morgen nach Europa).
- *Im Herbst ist das Wetter kühl. (Das Wetter ist kühl im Herbst).
- Meine Schwester malt sehr gern.
- Heute habe ich Mathe. (Ich habe heute Mathe.)

*The sentence “Im Herbst ist das Wetter kühl,” may be confusing because it looks like the verb is 3rd. Prepositional phrases count as one element.

- im Herbst
- nach Europa
- zu Karoline

Although the above phrases have more than one word, it would make no sense to split them up. Therefore, prepositional phrases should be kept together.

Word order with yes/no questions:

To make questions that can be answered with ja or nein, word order is exactly like English: VERB/SUBJECT/EVERYTHING ELSE

Statement: Der Student ist freundlich. (The student is friendly.)

Question: Ist der Student freundlich? (Is the student friendly?)

Statement: Mein Bruder arbeitet viel. (My brother works a lot.)

Question: Arbeitet mein Bruder viel? (Does my brother work a lot?)

(Works my brother a lot?)

In English, we add an extra “do” or “does” to make yes/no questions. German does not. If necessary, reword the sentence to sound simpler before making a question.

Do you jog? (Split verb/subject)

TAKE OUT “DO”: Jog you?(Verb/subject)

German: Joggst du? (Verb subject)

When in doubt, just put the verb first, and you have an instant question.

zurück—back
laut—loud

1. Wir fotografieren die Studenten.
2. Ich spaziere gern im Sommer.

3. Er hat zwei Brüder.
4. Sie spielt sehr gut Volleyball.
5. Die Professoren arbeiten am Donnerstag.
6. Der Student schreibt ein Buch.
7. Du wanderst gern.
8. Ihr kommt morgen zurück.
9. Der Mann singt sehr laut.

Ex. F: Interview. Ask your classmates 8 yes/no questions about themselves. Don't forget to put the verb first.

Beispiele:

Hörst du gern Musik?

Lernst du Spanisch?

Wohnst du in...?

Ex. G: Artikel. Take your answers to the questions in ex. F and write a brief paragraph about your classmates.

Question Words

You have already seen several question words so far. Here they are all together.

wann—when wo—where wie—how was—what woher—where from/from where warum—why wohin—where to/to where wer—who

Watch out!

Students often confuse wer and wo. Wer means “who,” because it has er, a person, in it. Wo means “where.”

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|---|
| • Wann arbeitest du? | When do you work? |
| • Wo wohnst du? | Where do you live? |
| • Wie heißt der Professor? | How is the professor called? |
| • Was ist das? | What is that? |
| • Woher kommen Sie? | Where do you come from? |
| • Warum lernst du Deutsch? | Why are you learning German? |
| • Wohin gehst du? | Where are you going (to)? |
| • Wer singt? | Who is singing?/ Who sings? |

Notice that the word order is exactly like English; the question word comes first, THEN the verb.

Time and Place

In German sentences, time expressions come before place expressions. This is the exact opposite of English, which usually puts place before time.

TP (Time/Place)

In each sentence below, the time phrase is in bold-face print while the place is in italics.

(Subject/Verb/Time/Place.)

Wir fliegen am Mittwoch nach Deutschland.

Mein Großvater bleibt morgen zu Hause.

Die Studentin reist in zwei Tagen nach Alaska.

Der Mann arbeitet im Winter im Restaurant.

You already know several time expressions using months and days of the week. Here are some place expressions to use for now, along with a few more time expression.

im Restaurant—in the restaurant im Kino—in the movies im Supermarkt—in the supermarket an der Uni—at the university
draußen—outside im Büro—in the office im Garten—in the garden in der Disco—in the disco oft—often nie—never nächstes Jahr—next year bald—soon

jeden Tag—every day

Ex. J: TP! Translate the following sentences into German, using correct word order→subject/verb/time/place.

Beispiel: The student sings at the university tomorrow.

→Der Student (die Studentin) singt morgen an der Uni.

(subject)

(verb) (time)

(place)

1. We swim every day in the summer.
2. Do you cook at home often?
3. He is at the movie theater a lot.
4. They are living in Sweden next year.
5. They never play outside.
6. Y'all (you guys) stay in the garden a lot.
7. She likes to dance in the disco.
8. He likes to swim at home in July.

Ex. K: Lesen wir! Read the following paragraph and answer the questions about it.

Helen lebt in Aachen. Aachen ist eine Stadt in Deutschland. Helen ist neununddreißig Jahre alt. Sie hat einen Mann, Martin, und zwei Kinder—Benno und Toni. Helen und Martin reisen sehr gern nach Frankreich. Helen spaziert gern am Strand, und Martin surft sehr gern. Benno und Toni spielen zusammen am Strand.

Helen hat andere Hobbys. Sie wandert mit Benno und Toni. Sie malt sehr gut. Sie lernt Englisch im Winter, und sie schwimmt im Sommer. Sie bleibt gern zu Hause mit ihrer Familie, aber manchmal fliegt sie nach Italien. Sie findet Italien super.

leben—to live permanently die Stadt—city am Strand—on the beach zusammen—together manchmal—sometimes

1. Wo lebt Helen?
2. Wie alt ist Helen?
3. Wie viele Kinder hat Helen?
4. Wohin reist Helen gern?
5. Was macht Martin gern?
6. Was macht Helen gern?

7. Was macht sie im Winter?
8. Wie findet Helen Italien?

13. Section 1-13

1-13: Possessive Adjectives

You already know how to use ein/eine and kein/keine. Possessive adjectives work the same way. In order to use them, you will need to know the grammatical gender of the word and add the correct ending (if necessary).

Review:

- der Computer→masculine→ein Computer (no ending added)
- das Poster→neuter→ein Poster (no ending added)
- die Wand→feminine→eine Wand (-e added)

We do the same with possessive adjectives.

Singular	Plural
mein/meine—my	unser/unsere—our
dein/deine—your (informal)	euer/eure—y'all (you guys')
sein/seine—his sein/seine—its ihr/ihre—her	ihr/ihre—their Ihr/Ihre—your (polite)

For example, if you want to say „our uncle,” you will do as follows.

1. der Onkel
2. masculine; add no ending to “unser.”
3. unser Onkel

If you want to say “my sister”...

1. die Schwester

2. feminine; add -e.
3. meine Schwester

If you want to say “your child”...

1. das Kind
2. neuter; add no ending
3. dein Kind

Andere Beispiele:

- Feminine: Meine Mutter kommt aus Alabama.
- Masculine: Mein Vater kommt aus Tennessee.
- Feminine: Deine Tasche ist neu.
- Masculine: Dein Rucksack ist alt.
- Masculine: Ihr Stuhl ist zu klein.
- Feminine: Ihre Tante ist sehr liberal.
- Masculine: Sein Laptop ist aus China.
- Feminine: Seine Tür ist bunt.
- Feminine: Unsere Professorin ist exzentrisch.
- Neuter: Unser Fenster ist grau.
- Feminine: Eure Schwester bleibt gern zu Hause.
- Masculine: Euer Bruder spielt gern Videospiele.
- Masculine: Frau Koch, was sagt Ihr Mann?
- Feminine: Frau Koch, singt Ihre Tochter heute?
- Masculine: Ihr Onkel schwimmt sehr schnell.
- Feminine: Ihre Großmutter ist krank.

(your, polite/formal)

9. Ist _____ Buch sehr lang? (your, familiar, singular)
10. _____ Tag beginnt um sechs Uhr. (our)

Ex. B: Stimmt das? Ask your classmates about their family members.
Answers should be in complete sentences.

Beispiel: Ist dein Vater kritisch?

→Ja, mein Vater ist kritisch.

OR

→Nein, mein Vater ist nicht kritisch.

1. Ist deine Schwester freundlich?
2. Ist deine Mutter optimistisch?
3. Ist dein Bruder clever?
4. Ist deine Großmutter modern?
5. Ist dein Großvater sentimental?
6. Ist dein Hund/deine Katze klein?
7. Ist deine Tante jung?
8. Ist dein Onkel gesund?
9. Ist deine Schwester fleißig?

Ex. C: Absatz. Using the answers to ex. B, write a brief paragraph about your partner's family.

Beispiel: Ihre/seine Mutter ist optimistisch...usw.

Ex. D: Multiple choice. Choose the correct form of the possessive adjective that will match the word in parenthesis.

1. _____ Bücher sind teuer. (die Studenten)
a. seine b. ihre c. eure
2. _____ Tante schwimmt gern. (Leon)

a. ihre b. unsere c. seine

3. Schreiben Sie ein Buch, Herr Professor? Ist _____ Buch lang?

a. dein b. euer c. Ihr

4. _____ Großvater ist groß. (Alex und ich)

5. _____ Gitarre ist ein Geschenk von seinen Eltern. (Karla)

a. eure b. seine c. ihre

6. _____ Handy hat eine Weckerfunktion. (ich)

a. dein b. mein c. ihr

7. _____ Mutter fotografiert gern. (du und Thomas)

a. ihre b. eure c. meine

Ex. E: Possessive Adjectives 1 & 2. Go to Germanzone.org's website and practice possessive adjectives with the following activities.

- <https://www.germanzone.org/possessive-adjectives-1/>.
- <https://www.germanzone.org/possessive-adjectives-2-die-familie/>.

Ex. F: Unser Klassenzimmer. Using possessive adjectives, describe the things in your classroom. Use „unser/unsere“ since the items belong to all of you. Don't forget to look at the gender to find the correct ending.

Beispiel: Unsere Landkarte ist sehr modern.

Ex. G: Die Zeitung. You are a reporter for a newspaper interviewing a celebrity about his or her family. Ask 8-10 questions with possessive adjectives. Don't forget to treat the person with respect; use Ihr, not dein! (And capitalize “Ihr”!)

Beispiel: Wohnt Ihr Bruder in Budapest? Singt Ihre Schwester?

Ex. H: Der Artikel. Using your questions from ex. D, make up answers and write a brief “article” about the celebrity. Don’t forget to use third person possessive adjectives sein/seine or ihr/ihre.

Beispiel: Sein Bruder wohnt in Prag. OR Ihr Bruder wohnt in Prag.

Ex. I: Euer Haus! After visiting these people, you tell them exactly what you think of their room. Since you know them well, use euer/eure and describe the items in their house.

Beispiel: Euer Teppich (rug) ist zu gelb. (Your rug is too yellow).

Ex. J: Fill-in-the-blank. Complete each blank with the correct form of the word in parenthesis. If you forget the gender of the word, look it up before continuing.

1. Das ist _____ Bruder. (my)
2. _____ Rucksack ist sehr groß. (your, polite)
3. Hast du _____ Schwester? (a)
4. Das ist _____ Onkel! (our)
5. Wir lesen _____ Buch. (his)
6. Der Student braucht _____ Heft. (a)
7. _____ Mann arbeitet bei McDonald's. (her)
8. Wir haben _____ Papier. (the)
9. _____ Buch ist zu lang! (the)
10. Das ist _____ Großmutter. (my)
11. Er liest _____ Tafel. (the)
12. Wir finden _____ Tasche. (her)
13. _____ Katze spielt gern. (our)
14. Er hat _____ Kind. (no/not any/not a)
15. Mein Vater hat _____ Uhr. (a)
16. _____ Computer war super teuer. (his)
17. _____ Tante kommt aus Bulgarien. (your, familiar, singular)
18. _____ Rucksack ist aus Japan. (your, familiar, plural)
19. _____ Tisch ist kaputt. (their)

Ex. K: Lesen. Read the article and answer the questions about it in complete sentences.

Laura kommt aus Italien, aber sie wohnt heute in Deutschland mit spricht—speaks

ihrem Mann. Lauras Mann ist Amerikaner und spricht nur Englisch und ein bisschen Deutsch. Er arbeitet bei BMW in Stuttgart. Laura spricht Deutsch, Englisch und Italienisch. Sie ist Lehrerin. Laura und ihr Mann arbeiten den ganzen Tag.

Manchmal gibt es Probleme in Lauras Familie. Laura kocht nicht gern. Ihr Mann kocht auch nicht gern. Manchmal essen sie zu Hause. Manchmal gehen sie ins Restaurant und das ist das Problem. Laura und ihr Mann haben Kinder—vier Jugendliche und ein Baby. Sie haben so viele Kinder...und Restaurants sind teuer. Alles im Restaurant kostet zu viel.

1. Woher kommt Laura?
2. Woher kommt Lauras Mann?
3. Ist Lauras Mann Italiener?
4. Wo arbeitet Lauras Mann?
5. Wie lange arbeiten Laura und ihr Mann?
6. Was macht Laura nicht gern?
7. Wie viele Kinder hat Laura?
8. Warum sind Restaurants ein Problem für Laura?

14. Section 1-14

1-14: Oral Proficiency Interview Practice:

Ex. 1: (Time goal—1:00-1:30)

You are left alone with your best friend's grandmother. Start a conversation to pass the time. Ask several questions to get to know her better.

Ex. 2: (Time goal—1:00-1:30)

You will be studying abroad next semester and call your future host family to introduce yourself. Tell them all about you and your hobbies.

Ex. 3: (Time goal—1:00-1:30)

You are talking with a friend about your schedule next semester. Ask your friend several questions about his/her opinion on several classes. Then give your own opinion about these classes.

Ex. 4: (Time goal—1:00-1:30)

You are babysitting for one of your coworkers' relatives. Ask the parent of the child several questions about her child.

Tips:

- Look back through the chapter to see what you might already know how to say.
- Write/say as much as you can about each topic as it relates to the above scenarios.
- Stick to what you've learned so far; don't worry yet about the grammar topics you haven't learned yet. That will come soon enough!
- Use lots of details. Saying more is always better!

Kapitel 2

In Chapter 1, you learned numbers up through the thousands. In this chapter, you will use them to tell time.

Ex. A: Video. Nicos Weg. Click the link to watch episode 9, “Zahlen von 1 bis 100” to review numbers. Do the exercises after the video.

<https://learngerman.dw.com/en/zahlen-von-1-bis-100/l-37265621>.

Ex. B: Video. Nicos Weg. Click the link to watch episode 10, „Wichtige Nummern.“ You will review how to say your age from Chapter 1. You will also learn how to ask for someone’s telephone number.

<https://learngerman.dw.com/en/wichtige-nummern/l-37269501>.

2.1: Telling Time (unofficial/conversational)

Telling time in German uses basic numbers that you already know. It will be used to answer the following questions.

- Wie viel Uhr ist es? (What time is it?/“How much clock is it?”)
- Wie spät ist es? (How late is it?)
- Wie viel Uhr haben wir? (What time do we have?)

Start with the expression “Es ist,” then list the number.

Time on the exact hour:

Es ist drei Uhr. (It is three o'clock.)

Shorter form: Es ist drei. (It is three.)

Es ist ein Uhr. (It is one o'clock.)

Shorter form: Es ist eins. (It is one.)

schon gut—
never mind

Ex. C: Wie viel Uhr ist es?

Write a complete sentence to tell what time it is.

Beispiel: 9:00

→Es ist neun Uhr. OR Es ist neun.

1. 11:00
2. 4:00
3. 2:00
4. 12:00

5. 8:00
6. 6:00
7. 1:00
8. 7:00

Time on the half-hour:

To tell the time on the half-hour, German rounds up to the next hour.

Es ist halb acht.

halb—half

Longer form: Es ist halb acht

Uhr.

Es ist halb zwei.

Longer form: Es ist halb zwei
Uhr.

Ex. D: Wie viel Uhr ist es? Write a complete sentence to tell the time.

Beispiel: 4:30

→Es ist halb fünf.

1. 7:30
2. 9:30
3. 2:30
4. 4:30

5. 11:30
6. 10:30
7. 6:30
8. 5:30

Time after the hour:

To say that it is just past the hour, use the word nach, “after,” to say how much after the hour it is.

2:05 Es ist fünf nach zwei.
(It is five after two.)

8:20 Es ist zwanzig nach acht.
(It is twenty after eight.)

1:13 Es ist dreizehn nach eins.
(It is thirteen after one.)

Ex. E: Wie viel Uhr ist es? Schreiben Sie in ganzen Sätzen! (Write in complete sentences.)

Beispiel: 7:18 (Think „It is eighteen after seven.)

→Es ist achtzehn nach sieben.

1. 1:09
2. 7:03
3. 4:10
4. 2:07
5. 7:02
6. 8:18
7. 11:20
8. 9:14

Time before the hour:

To say that it is just before the next hour, use the word vor, „before,” to say how much before the next hour it is.

7:55	Es ist fünf vor acht. (It is five before eight.)
11:40	Es ist zwanzig vor zwölf. (It is twenty before twelve.)
3:59	Es ist eins vor vier. (It is one before four.)

Learning tip:

vor—before

Note that “vor” sounds a lot like the last syllable of English “before.” To help you learn other new vocabulary words more easily, you might want to underline the parts that remind you of English words that you already know.

Ex. F: Wie spät ist es? Schreiben Sie in ganzen Sätzen!

Beispiel: 1:50 (Think „It is ten before two.)

→ Es ist zehn vor zwei.

1. 7:42
2. 6:41
3. 9:58
4. 11:46
5. 8:55
6. 10:47
7. 2:57
8. 8:59

Telling time on the quarter hour:

Just like English, German has a word that means “fifteen minutes” before or after the hour. Viertel—quarter (hour). Note that Viertel is capitalized because it is a noun; all German nouns are capitalized.

A: Wie viel Uhr ist es? (What time is it?)

B: Es ist Viertel nach neun. (It is a quarter after nine.)

A: Wie spät ist es? (How late is it?)

B: Es ist Viertel vor zwölf. (It is a quarter before/to twelve.)

Ex. G: Wie viel Uhr ist es? Schreiben Sie in ganzen Sätzen!

Beispiel: 7:45

→Es ist Viertel vor acht.

1. 3:15
2. 9:45
3. 1:45
4. 11:15
5. 3:45
6. 2:15
7. 6:45
8. 4:15

To say that something happens AT a certain time, use the preposition um.

A: Wann hast du Deutsch?

B: Ich habe Deutsch um elf Uhr.

Ex. H: Partnerarbeit. Julias Stundenplan. Take turns with your partner to ask each other when Julia has the following classes. Don't forget to use the preposition um to say at what time she has these classes.

Beispiel:

A: Wann hat Julia Englisch?

B: Sie hat Englisch um halb neun.

English	8:30		Philosophie	12:20
Deutsch	9:45		Sport	1:30
Musik	10:10		Mathe	1:55
eine Pause	11:00		Chemie	2:40

17. Section 2-2

2.2. Food, Drink, and Family Members

In Chapter 1, you learned most vocabulary relating to the family. Below are more family member vocabulary words.

der Cousin—cousin (male)	der Enkel—grandson
die Cousine—cousin (female)	die Enkelin—granddaughter
die Nichte—niece	das Enkelkind—grandchild
der Neffe—nephew	Eltern—parents (always plural)
der Schwager—brother-in-law	Geschwister—siblings (pl.)
die Schwägerin—sister-in-law

Here are a few new adjectives to describe these and other family members.

ledig—single verheiratet—married verlobt—engaged geschieden—divorced
kinderlos—childless

In Chapter 1, you also learned that der Mann is “the man” and die Frau is “the woman.”

Both of these words also have a second definition.

der Mann—the husband (or der Ehemann)

die Frau—the wife (or die Ehefrau)

You may be wondering how to know the difference between them. If you use a possessive adjective with these words, they usually mean “husband” and “wife.” Compare.

Mein Mann spielt Golf. (My husband plays golf.)

Der Mann spielt Golf. (The man plays golf.)

Seine Frau spielt Klavier. (His wife plays piano.)

Die Frau spielt Klavier. (The woman plays piano.)

In Chapter 1, you also learned about possessive adjectives.

Singular	Plural
mein/meine—my	unser/unsere—our
dein/deine—your (informal)	euer/eure—y'all (you guys')
sein/seine—his sein/seine—its ihr/ihre—her	ihr/ihre—their Ihr/Ihre—your (polite)

We can take it one step further and talk about everyone's favorite drinks.

Beispiel: Ich trinke gern Cola. Meine Schwester trinkt gern Sprite.

Cola	Orangensaft	Mineralwasser
Fanta	Apfelsaft	Tee
Sprite	Tomatensaft	Kaffee
Wasser	Traubensaft	Bier
Milch	Wein	Mezzo Mix

Ex. D: Was trinken Sie gern? Was trinken Sie nicht gern?

Ich trinke gern _____. Ich trinke nicht gern _____.
(I like to drink _____. I do not like to drink _____.)

Ex. E: Was trinkt ihre Familie gern? Nicht gern?

Mein Cousin trinkt gern _____. Er trinkt nicht gern _____.

Meine Nichte trinkt gern _____. Sie trinkt nicht gern _____.

...usw

Ex. F: Was essen Sie gern? Was essen Sie nicht gern?

Brot	Sellerie	Kekse	Obst
Fleisch	Fisch	Eis	Kohl
Wurst	Reis	Chips	Gurken
Käse	Nudeln	Pizza	Salat
Joghurt	Hähnchen	Spaghetti	Hamburger
Suppe	Kartoffeln	Bohnen	Schnitzel
Tomaten	Eier	Erbsen	Pommes frites
Trauben	Steak	Möhren	(Fritten)
Zwiebeln	Sushi	Karotten	Schokolade
Brokkoli	Kuchen	Gemüse	Orangen
Äpfel	Bananen	Mais	Koteletts
Speck	Schinken	Spargel	Erdbeeren

Ich esse gern _____. Ich esse nicht gern _____.
 (I like to eat _____. I do not like to eat _____.)

Ex. G: Beschreiben Sie Ihr Essen! Using the adjectives, express your opinion on the following foods in a complete sentence.

süß—sweet	lecker—tasty	gesund—healthy
sauer—sour	vegetarisch—vegetarian	vegan—vegan
salzig—salty	ungesund—unhealthy

Favorites

To express that something is your favorite, attach the prefix Liebings- to any noun.

- Lieblingsbuch→favorite book
- Lieblingsessen→favorite food
- Lieblingsgetränk→favorite drink
- Lieblingsperson→favorite person
- Lieblingskurs→favorite class/subject

Ex. I: Was ist dein Lieblingsessen? With a partner, ask each other the following questions. Answer in complete sentences. Don't forget to put the correct ending on "mein/e" that corresponds with the gender of the word.

Beispiel: Lieblingsbuch

A: Was ist dein Lieblingsbuch?

B: Mein Lieblingsbuch ist Herr der Ringe.

1. Lieblingsessen
2. Lieblingsgetränk
3. Lieblingsperson (Hint: Use „wer“ instead of “was”!)
4. Lieblingskurs

18. Section 2-3

2.3—The Accusative Case

So far in this chapter, you have been making sentences that have both subjects and direct objects.

Subject: the person or thing DOING the action

Direct object: the thing that gets the action DONE by the verb Beispiel: Sein Vater trinkt gern Apfelsaft.

(subject) (verb) (direct object)

- Subject→sein Vater (the person doing the drinking)
- Verb→trinkt (what is being done)
- Direct object→Apfelsaft (the thing being drunk)

In Chapter 1, you learned that the subject of a sentence is in the nominative case.

Now we will add to that; the direct object is in the accusative case.

Nominative case: subject

Accusative case: direct object

Normally, the direct object comes after the verb in German sentences, but not always! Remember, as you learned in Chapter 1, we can switch around different elements in a German sentence, as long as the verb remains in 2nd position. The direct object of each sentence below is in bold print.

Ich habe zwei Schwestern .	I have two sisters .
Meine Tante hat einen Freund .	My aunt has a boyfriend .
Unser Cousin trinkt kein Bier .	Our cousin drinks no beer .
Wir spielen gern Fußball .	We like to play soccer .

So far, you have been making several sentences that have direct objects, using words for food, drinks, and hobbies. Direct objects are in the accusative case. When we use definite articles (der/die/das) and indefinite articles (ein/eine), as well as possessive adjectives and negation (kein/keine) as direct objects, there are some slight changes.

You might have noticed in the previous example that there is an extra “en” at the end of the word “einen.”

Meine Tante hat einen Freund.

Masculine words will add an extra -en to the definite article, indefinite article, possessive adjectives, and “kein.” (ONLY masculine! Everything else stays the same.) In the examples below, the extra -en has been bold-faced. The direct object has been underlined. The masculine examples have been prefaced with a *.

*Wir kaufen einen Kuli.	(Masculine „Kuli“ adds -en.)
Du kaufst ein Heft.	(Neuter „Heft“ stays the same.)
*Ich habe keinen Cousin.	(Masculine “Cousin” adds -en.)
Er hat keine Tochter.	(Feminine „Tochter“ stays the same.)
*Karin braucht meinen Gummi.	(Masculine „Gummi“ adds -en.)
Ihr kocht meine Suppe.	(Feminine „Suppe“ stays the same.)
*Du kennst seinen Enkel.	(Masculine “Enkel” adds -en.)
Wir sehen die Kinder.	(Plural “Kinder” stays the same.)

Der Student liest euer Buch. (Neuter „Buch“ stays the same.)

The definite article “der” becomes “den” in the accusative.

Frau Koltz kauft den Computer. Frau Koltz is buying the computer.

Du und ich lesen den Roman. You and I are reading the novel.

Sehen Sie den Mann? Do you see the man?

An easy way to practice using the accusative case is to use the verb haben to talk about which family members you have and don't have.

Ich habe eine Schwester. (Feminine stays the same.)

I have a sister.

Ich habe einen Vater. (Masculine adds -en.)

I have a father.

If you don't have certain family members, use the correct form of kein to say that you don't.

Ich habe keinen Bruder. (Masculine adds -en.)

I have no brother.

Ich habe kein Kind. (Neuter stays the same.)

I have no child.

Ex. A: Beschreiben Sie Ihre Familie! Which family members do you have or not have? Go through the list in both Chapters 1 and 2, using the accusative case AFTER the verb haben, as in the examples on the previous page.

Ex. B: Was haben Sie dabei? What do you have with you today? Describe your items, using the verb haben and the accusative case.

Beispiel: Ich habe ein Buch, einen Kuli und ein Heft dabei. Ich habe keinen Laptop dabei.

dabei—with you/with me,
etc.

Predicate Nominatives:

It's easy to get in the habit of assuming that the last noun in the sentence is the direct object. Here are some instances where the last word is still in the nominative case. We call these predicate nominatives.

The verb sein (to be) is always followed by the nominative case. Any form of sein (ist, bist, sind, bin, seid) acts like an equal sign that makes one side of the sentence exactly equal to the other.

Das ist ein Kuli.

das = Kuli

Therefore “ein Kuli” is nominative. We don’t put an extra –en at the end because it is not accusative.

Du bist mein Bruder.

du = mein Bruder

Therefore “mein Bruder” is nominative. We don’t add an extra –en at the end because it is not accusative.

Always check to see if your sentence has a form of sein; if it does, then your sentence doesn’t have a direct object, aka accusative case. It has a predicate nominative instead.

This comic was created at www.MakeBeliefsComix.com. Go there and make one now!

Video: Watch Easy German's video to see lots of examples with both nominative and accusative. The first example will always be a predicate nominative, which you read about on the previous page, and the second will be in the accusative.

One or more interactive elements has been excluded from this version of the text. You can view them online here: <https://una.pressbooks.pub/gr101/?p=536#oembed-7>

Ex. C: Nominativ oder Akkusativ? In the sentences below, choose whether the underlined word is in the nominative case (N) or in the accusative case (A).

Beispiel: Die Katze (N/A) hat eine Maus (N/A).

Die Katze (N/A) hat eine Maus (N/A).

1. Der Student (N/A) trinkt keinen Kaffee (N/A).
2. Das (N/A) ist ein T-shirt (N/A).
3. Wir (N/A) finden den Roman (N/A) langweilig.
4. Mein Bruder (N/A) kommt aus China.
5. Was (N/A) essen Sie (N/A) gern?
6. Wir (N/A) machen Spaghetti (N/A) und Pizza (N/A).
7. Der Supermarkt (N/A) verkauft kein Obst (N/A).
8. Ich (N/A) brauche meine Tasche (N/A).
9. Die Frau (N/A) ist Professorin (N/A).

Ex. D: Der Akkusativ! Each of the sentences below has a direct object. Fill in with the correct form of the accusative case. If you can't remember the gender of the word, look it up. Hint: Masculine gets an extra -en.

1. Er hat _____ Onkel in England. (a)
2. Hast du _____ Schwester? (a)
3. Ich brauche _____ Buch. (his)

4. Wir kennen _____ Bruder. (your, singular, informal)
5. Kaufst du _____ Computer? (the)
6. Frau Schmidt, haben Sie _____ Bleistift dabei? (a)
7. Ihre Eltern haben _____ Sohn und _____ Tochter. (a)
8. Wir kennen _____ Freund. (her)
9. Wir besuchen _____ Großvater. (yall's; you plural informal)
10. Ich liebe _____ Haus! (his)

Now we will take it one step further. In the next exercise, you will have to determine whether the blank is in the nominative or the accusative before filling in the blank.

Step 1: Determine whether the word is in the nominative or accusative (aka subject or direct object.)

Step 2: If it is accusative, masculine adds an extra -en; der becomes den.

Ex. E: Der Akkusativ nochmal! Fill in the blank with the correct form of each word in parenthesis. Watch out; both nominative and accusative are present!

1. Du brauchst _____ Hund. (a)
2. _____ Enkel ist sehr groß. (your, polite)
3. Hast du _____ Kind? (a)
4. Das ist _____ Onkel! (our)
5. Wir besuchen _____ Stiefschwester. (his)
6. Der Student braucht _____ Landkarte. (a)
7. _____ Mann arbeitet bei McDonald's. (her)
8. Wir suchen _____ Tisch. (the)
9. _____ Tisch ist zu teuer! (the)

Ex. F: Was kaufen Sie am Semesteranfang? What do you buy at the beginning of the semester? Practice using the accusative case to tell a partner what you buy each semester. Remember the things being bought are direct objects. Masculine items should get an extra -en.

am Semesteranfang—at the beginning of the semester kaufen—to buy viele—many (+noun in plural)

A: Was kaufst du am Semesteranfang?

B: Ich kaufe einen Rucksack, viele Bücher und ein Heft.

Ex. G: Was haben Sie heute vergessen? What have you forgotten today? Remember to put the items being forgotten into the accusative case because they are direct objects.

A: Was hast du heute vergessen?

vergessen—forgotten

B: Ich habe _____, _____ und _____ vergessen.

EXTRA PRACTICE with ANSWER KEY: Fill in the blanks with the correct form of the nominative or accusative case.

1. Ich suche _____ Cousin. (your—sing./fam.)
2. _____ Enkel und _____ Enkelin sprechen Französisch. (her)
3. _____ Eltern wohnen nicht weit von hier. (my)
4. Die Katze frisst _____ Fleisch. (y'all's/you plural-fam.)
5. Ich sehe _____ Zeitung. (your—polite)
6. Was liest _____ Vater. (his)
7. Er liest gern _____ Bücher. (our)
8. Gertrud kennt _____ Onkel. (my)
9. _____ Kinder haben keine Zeit. (their)
10. Der Student kauft _____ Computer und _____ Pizza. (a) 11. _____ Hund liebt die Katze, aber die Katze liebt _____ Hund nicht. (the)

Answers:

1. deinen; Cousin is the direct object and masculine. Therefore “dein” becomes “deinen.”
2. ihr/ihre; Both words are the subject. Enkelin is feminine, so therefore ihr + e = ihre.
3. meine; The word is plural and the subject. Mein adds an e for plural.
4. euer; The word is a direct object and neuter. Nothing changes.
5. Ihre; Zeitung is the direct object and feminine. Ihr + e = Ihre.
6. sein; Vater is the subject. I know it probably looks like it's the direct object, but rephrase the question so that it's a sentence: Sein Vater liest was. “His father reads what.” “What” is your direct object and father is the subject.

7. unsere; Bücher is a plural word and a direct object. Unser + e = unsere.
8. meinen; Onkel is the direct object and masculine. Therefore mein takes an extra -en because it changes in the accusative case.
9. ihre; Kinder is a plural and a subject. "Ihr" + e = ihre.
10. einen/eine; Both words are direct objects. The first is masculine and adds an extra -en in the accusative. The second is feminine.
11. Der/den; In the first blank, it is the subject and stays "der." In the second, it has become the direct object, and masculine direct objects in the accusative change to "den."

Es gibt + accusative

To say “There is...” or “There are...” in German, we don’t use the verb sein, as in English. Instead, we use the idiomatic expression, “Es gibt...”

Es gibt eine Familie.

The noun that comes after the phrase “Es gibt” MUST be in the accusative case. That means that anything masculine must add an extra -en to the definite article, indefinite article, or possessive adjectives.

Es gibt einen Vater und eine Mutter.

Es gibt einen Großvater und eine Großmutter.

Es gibt zwei Kinder und ein Baby.

Ex. L: Was gibt es in diesem Zimmer? What is there in this room?

Answer using “Es gibt” followed by the accusative case.

A: Was gibt es in diesem Zimmer?

B: Es gibt einen Tisch, _____, _____ usw.

Ex. M: Was gibt es in Ihrem Rucksack? What is there in your backpack? Answer using “Es gibt” followed by the accusative case.

A: Was gibt es in Ihrem Rucksack?

B: Es gibt _____, _____ und _____.

Ex. N: Was gibt es? Answer using as many complete sentences as possible for each picture.

Songtext: <https://www.songtexte.com/songtext/santiano/es-gibt-nur-wasser-5b85230c.html>

When dealing with direct objects and the accusative case, it's good to know when to use a definite article or not. Often, in English, we don't use a definite article.

I like to eat pizza.

There's fruit here.

Notice that you don't see the definite article "the" in these sentences. We aren't talking about a specific pizza or specific fruit, so we leave it out. If you had been talking about a specific item, the sentences would have been

I like to eat the pizza. (specific pizza)

There's the fruit here. (specific fruit)

If you normally wouldn't use "the" in English, you probably won't need der/die/das in German and vice versa.

Ich esse gern Pizza.

Es gibt Obst hier.

If you wanted to say that you're eating a specific pizza or fruit, you would add the definite article.

Ich esse gern die Pizza. I like to eat THE pizza.

Es gibt das Obst hier. There's the fruit here.

Use the English that you already know to help distinguish between using a definite article or leaving it out.

19. Section 2-4

2.4: Stem-changing verbs

You learned in Chapter 1 how to conjugate sein, haben, and regular verbs. Although sein and haben are irregular and must be memorized, regular verbs have the same endings. Here they are below as a review.

ich→-e	wir→-en (same as infinitive)
du→-st	ihr→-t
er/sie/es→-t	sie/Sie→-en (same as infinitive)

In Chapter 1, you also learned how to describe the weather with adjectives. To review conjugation of regular verbs, here are a few verbs that you can use to describe the weather.

regnen—to rain schneien—to snow blitzen—to lightning stürmen—to storm scheinen—to shine

die Sonne—sun

Ex. A: Wie ist das Wetter? Using the weather verbs above, write several complete sentences for each day of the weather forecast below, including the day. Remember—the verb must always be in second position. As a review, also use the adjectives you learned in Chapter 2.

Montag

15° C

Beispiel: Es regnet am Montag. (Am Montag regnet es.) Es ist wolkig. Wir haben 15 Grad. Es ist kühl.

Some verbs in German have a stem change. This means that we will need to change a vowel in the stem as well as putting on the regular endings that you learned in Chapter 1 from the chart on the previous page.

Verb: spielen
STEM	ENDING
spiel-	-en

For example, the verb tragen, to wear, or to carry, is a stem-changing verb that changes its stem from a to ä.

Unser Onkel trägt ein T-shirt und eine Jeans.

Du trägst einen Pulli in blau.

When conjugating, we put on the regular ending -t AND change the vowel in the stem to ä.

Rule: Stem-changing verbs only change their stems when conjugated for du or er/sie/es. All other subjects stay the same.

Here is a list of verbs that undergo a vowel change from a to ä.

Stem-changing verbs: a→ä tragen—to wear
fahren—to drive
laufen—to run, walk fast schlafen—to sleep
halten—to stop, to halt

The conjugation of laufen, for example, would look like this.

ich laufe	wir laufen
*du lä ufst	ihr lauft
*er lä uft	sie laufen
*sie lä uft	Sie laufen
*es lä uft

Notice that ONLY the du and er/sie/es form change their stems. Everything else stay the same as a regular conjugation.

⇒PRONUNCIATION of äu: [äu] makes the same sound as [eu]; it is pronounced similar to the English “oi,” as in “foil” or “boil.”

The other a to ä stem-changing verbs are conjugated similarly.

halten—to halt, to stop
ich halte	wir halten
*du hältst	ihr haltet
*er/sie/es hält	sie/Sie halten

fahren—to drive
ich fahre	wir fahren
*du fährst	ihr fahrt
*er/sie/es fährt	sie/Sie fahren

tragen—to wear; to carry ich trage	wir tragen
*du trägst	ihr tragt
*er/sie/es trägt	sie/Sie tragen

schlafen—to sleep
ich schlafe	wir schlafen
*du schläfst	ihr schlagt
*er/sie/es schläft	sie/Sie schlafen

Fahren vs. gehen. The German language is slightly more specific when it comes to driving vs. walking. The verb gehen, which you learned in Chapter 1, means “to walk or to go by foot.” It would sound strange to describe the following picture as “Die Katze geht.”

Die Katze fährt.

Since the car has no feet, it is better to use the verb fahren. Use fahren with cars, bicycles, and most modes of transportation. Notice the difference in gehen and fahren in the following exchange between two exchange students and a bus driver

- Studentin 1: I don't speak German. Ask the bus driver if this bus is going into town.
- Studentin 2: Entschuldigung. Geht dieser Bus in die Stadt?
- Busfahrer: Nein, leider nicht.
- Studentin 2: (Turns to Studentin 1) No, it's not going into town.
- Busfahrer: Junge Dame, junge Dame! (Motions to Studentin 2) Dieser Bus geht nicht. Er hat keine Füße. Er fährt. Und ja, er fährt in die Stadt.

5. Wir _____ sehr gern im Park. (laufen)
6. Unsere Professorin ist spät! Sie _____ in die
Deutschstunde vier Minuten zu spät. (laufen)
7. Viele Studenten _____ jeden Tag eine Jeans.
(tragen)
8. _____ du im Winter eine Jacke? (tragen)
9. Das Auto _____. (halten)

There is also a set of verbs that have a stem change from “e” to “i”/“ie.”

Stem changing verbs e→i or e→ie essen—to eat	e→i
lesen—to read	e→ie
nehmen—to take	e→i
sehen—to see	e→ie
sprechen—to speak	e→i
geben—to give	e→i
werden—to become	e→i

They are conjugated exactly like the stem-changing verbs that changed from “a” to “ä.” The conjugation of essen is as follows.

ich esse	wir essen
*du i sst	ihr esst
*er i sst	sie essen
*sie i sst	Sie essen
*es i sst

Notice that when conjugating for du, (iss + st), we don't end up with issst. Limit it to only two of the letter s.

Here are the rest of the ei stem-changing verbs with conjugations.

sprechen—to speak
ich spreche	wir sprechen
*du sprichst	ihr sprecht
*er/sie/es spricht	sie/Sie sprechen

werden—to become, to get (as in “become”) ich werde	wir werden
du wirst	ihr werdet
er/sie/es wird	sie/Sie werden

Notice that the du-form loses the “d” from the stem.

The er/sie/es form ends in -d.

geben—to give
ich gebe	wir geben
*du gibst	ihr gebt
*er/sie/es gibt	sie/Sie geben

You have already used the verb geben in the phrase “Es gibt _____.” Although it literally translates to “It gives,” think of it as “There is” or “There are” when expressing the existence of something.

nehmen—to take ich nehme	wir nehmen
*du nimmst	ihr nehmt
*er/sie/es nimmt	sie/Sie nehmen

Nehmen is the only stem-changing verb that adds a double “m” as well as a vowel change to the stem. Once again, these changes only happen at du and er/sie/es.

The verbs sehen and lesen stem-change from „e“ to „ie.“

sehen—to see
ich sehe	wir sehen
*du siehst	ihr seht
*er/sie/es sieht	sie/Sie sehen

lesen—to read
ich lese	wir lesen
*du liest	ihr lest
*er/sie/es liest	sie/Sie lesen

Ex. I: Partnerarbeit. Take turns asking your classmates if they are reading the following items. Answer in complete sentences. Don't forget to put the direct object, aka the thing being read, in the accusative case.

A: Liest du __das Buch___?

B: Ja, ich lese das Buch.

If you don't read the thing that you're asked about, negate the sentence by putting nicht after the direct object.

B: Nein, ich lese das Buch nicht.

1. die Zeitung
2. der Roman
3. die Zeitschrift
4. das Comicheft
5. der Artikel

Ex. J: Kleiner Absatz. Write a brief paragraph about what your partners from activity I read and don't read.

Beispiel: Kelsey liest die Zeitung nicht, aber sie liest Romane...usw

To say that you prefer to do one thing over another, you can use the word lieber.

Ich lese gern Harry Potter, aber ich lese lieber Herr der Ringe.

(I like to read Harry Potter, but I prefer to read Lord of the Rings.)

Ex. K: Was machst du lieber? What do you prefer to do? Answer in complete sentences.

Beispiel: Comichefte/Artikel

A: Liest du lieber Comichefte oder Artikel?

B: Ich lese lieber Comichefte.

1. Artikel/Romane
2. Romane/die Zeitung
3. die Zeitung/Zeitschriften
4. Zeitschriften/Comichefte
5. Bücher/Artikel

Ex. L: Kleiner Absatz. Compare your answers to Ex. K to those of your partner in a brief paragraph. Use the word aber to connect comparing sentences.

Beispiel: Mein Partner/meine Partnerin liest lieber Artikel, aber ich lese lieber Comichefte...usw.

Ex. M: Was siehst du auf dem Bild? What do you see on the picture? With a partner, ask each other questions. Don't forget to put the direct object, aka the thing that you see, in the accusative case. If you DON'T see the thing you are asked about, put the appropriate form of kein in front of your answer.

A: Siehst du eine Pflanze? (Do you see a plant?)

B: Ja, ich sehe eine Pflanze. (Yes, I see a plant.)

B: Siehst du einen Hund? (Do you see a dog?)

A: Nein, ich sehe keinen Hund. (No, I see no dog.)

Ex. N: Welche Sprachen sprichst du? Which languages do you speak? Ask your classmates about the following languages. If you don't speak the language, put the correct form of kein in front of the language. If you speak the language a little, you can add ein bisschen to your answer.

Beispiel: Chinesisch

A: Sprichst du Chinesisch? (Do you speak Chinese?)

B: Ja, ich spreche Chinesisch. (Yes, I speak Chinese.)

ODER

B: Ja, ich spreche ein bisschen Chinesisch. (Yes, I speak a little Chinese.)

ODER

B: Nein, ich spreche kein Chinesisch. (No, I speak no Chinese.)

2. Spanisch
3. Französisch
4. Japanisch
5. Arabisch
6. Latein
7. Koreanisch
8. Portugiesisch
9. Deutsch

Ex. O: Ich spreche Französisch, aber mein Partner spricht Spanisch. Using what you learned about your classmates in exercise

N, write a brief paragraph comparing your own language experience to theirs.

und—and oder—or aber—but denn—because

Beispiel: Sarah und ich sprechen Englisch. Ich spreche kein Italienisch, aber Sarah spricht sehr gut Italienisch. Philipp spricht....usw.

Man vs. der Mann:

To say that people in general do something, you can use the subject man. Man is always lowercase unless it comes at the beginning of the sentence. Don't confuse it with the word der Mann, which is a specific person. Man will always be conjugated like er/sie/es.

man—one, you, people, they; talking about a group of people

Beispiel:

A: Was isst man bei McDonald's?

(What do people/you/one/they eat at McDonald's?)

B: Man isst normalerweise Hamburger und Fritten.

(People/they/one/you normally eat hamburgers and fries.)

Notice that man has a lot of translations in English. It's also the equivalent of using English “one” instead of “you” in an essay. In German, man doesn’t sound odd. It’s normal to hear it in everyday life. It’s often used to express a generalization about a group of people.

Man isst
Schnitzel in

- People eat Schnitzel in Germany.
- You eat Schnitzel in Germany.
- They eat Schnitzel in Germany.
- One eats Schnitzel in Germany.

8. Brasilien

Ex. Q: Was nimmst du? You are in a restaurant in Germany with several friends. Write a complete sentence, using the stem-changing verb nehmen, to say what they are ordering, aka “taking.”

Don't forget to put the direct object in the accusative case!

Beispiel: Paul/das Schnitzel

→Paul nimmt das Schnitzel.

1. ich/die Pizza-Margherita
2. wir/der Käsekuchen
3. Janina/Fritten mit Mayo
4. du/Sushi

Stefan ist sechsundvierzig Jahre alt. Er kommt aus Stuttgart aber er wohnt und arbeitet in Aachen. Er ist nicht sehr modern aber sehr kompetent. Er liest gern Harry Potter, Herr der Ringe und andere Fantasy-Bücher. Er isst sehr gern Nudeln, Salat und Schnitzel. Er trinkt gern Tee, Mineralwasser und manchmal eine Cola. Stefan sucht immer seine Brille. Es gibt viel in Stefans Haus. Es gibt einen Tisch, ein Sofa, ein Bett, einen Fernseher aber keine Zeitung. Stefan liest keine Zeitung, aber manchmal liest er die Nachrichten im Internet.

Stefans Familie ist sehr groß. Er hat eine Frau und zwei Kinder. Seine Frau arbeitet als Lehrerin. Seine Kinder heißen Katrin und Erick. Sie sind aktiv, athletisch und super intelligent. Erick studiert in England, und Katrin arbeitet in Boston. Katrin hat ein Haus in Boston. Sie liest sehr gern. Sie liest alles—Fantasy-Bücher, Krimis, Science-Fiction...usw. Sie hat ihren Dokortitel. Erick kocht sehr gern. Er kocht gern Gemüse. Manchmal grillt er Fleisch. Erick hat eine Freundin aber Katrin hat keinen Freund. Sie sagt, sie hat keine Zeit für einen Freund.

Stefan hat auch eine Mutter und einen Vater. Seine Mutter heißt Annika und sein Vater heißt Johann. Stefans Eltern sind sehr alt aber gesund. Stefan hat keine Großmutter und keinen Großvater. Sie sind schon lange tot. Stefan hat auch viele Tanten, Onkel, Cousins und Cousinen, aber er kennt sie alle nicht. Seine Familie ist sehr groß.

20. Section 2-5

2.5: Accusative Prepositions

You learned in a previous section that the accusative case is used for direct objects.

Der Professor kauft einen Computer.

(direct object)

To sum it up, we add an extra -en to the ending of ein-words, kein, and possessive adjectives that are masculine. The definite article der becomes den.

The accusative case will also be used after the following prepositions:

durch—through für—for gegen—against ohne—without um—around; at (with time) bis—until

Whenever you see one of these, use the accusative case on the noun or pronoun that comes immediately after it.

Beispiele:

- Unser Neffe geht durch die Stadt. (through the city)
- Die Geschwister kaufen Gemüse für ihre Eltern. (for their parents)
- Die Schwester spielt gegen ihren Bruder. (against her brother)
- Ich esse lieber Pommes frites ohne Mayo. (without mayonnaise)
- Der Mann fährt um die Ecke. (around the corner)

- Tschüss! Bis Montag! (until Monday)

Contractions with accusative prepositions:

Languages often form contractions, which is a short form of two or more words combined. We do this in English frequently.

cannot = can't will not = won't do not = don't it is = it's

These words can be used either in their long form or their contracted form. Although they are normally used as contractions in English, often we use the long form for emphasis.

I will not eat broccoli! vs I won't eat broccoli.

Similarly, in German there are three of the accusative prepositions that form contractions. Just like in English, they can be used without the contracted form to show emphasis, but often they are used as contractions.

für + das = fürs um + das = ums
durch + das = durchs

Beispiele:

- Wir laufen ums Hotel. (um das Hotel = ums Hotel)
- Sie gehen durchs Dorf. (durch das Dorf = durchs Dorf)
- Du kaufst ein Eis fürs Kind. (für das Kind = fürs Kind)
- Ich tanze ums Taxi. (um das Taxi = ums Taxi)

Dillon Falkenberg reist nach Europa. Seine Cousine Tess und sein Vater, Herr Falkenberg, kommen mit.

„Wir starten in Frankreich. Dann fahren wir durch Belgien, Luxemburg, Deutschland, und die Schweiz“, sagt Herr Falkenberg.

Tess lächelt nicht. „Nein, wir fahren um Luxemburg,“ antwortet sie. „Ich fahre lieber nicht durch Luxemburg.“

„Aber Tess! Was hast du gegen Luxemburg?“ fragt Dillon. „Die Luxemburger sind so freundlich, und die Landschaft ist sehr schön!“

„Wir haben nicht genug Zeit. Wir bleiben nur zwei Wochen in Europa, also bis August,“ sagt Tess.

Dillon ist nicht zufrieden. Ohne Luxemburg ist seine Europareise nicht ideal.

„Moment mal!“ sagt Herr Falkenberg. „Es gibt genug Zeit für einen Ausflug nach Luxemburg. Wir fahren kurz mal dahin, essen zu Mittag im Restaurant und fahren weiter nach Deutschland.“

Dillon und Tess finden seine Idee sehr praktisch. Die Familie verbringt eine Stunde im Restaurant in Luxemburg. Dann fährt sie nach Deutschland.

1. Wer reist nach Europa?
2. Wo beginnt die Reise?
3. Was hat Tess gegen eine Reise durch Luxemburg?
4. Was für eine Idee hat Herr Falkenberg?

2I. Section 2-6

2.6: Accusative Personal Pronouns

In Chapter 1, you learned the nominative case personal pronouns.

ich—I	wir—we
du—you (familiar)	ihr—you (plural, familiar); y'all
er—he sie—she es—it	sie—they Sie—you (formal)

In this chapter, you will learn the accusative case personal pronouns. To better understand the difference between nominative and accusative pronouns, we will compare them to English. In English, we switch between nominative (subject) and accusative (direct object) pronouns all the time without realizing it. For example, we know when to use “I” and when to use “me.”

Nominative/subject	Accusative/direct object
I	me
you	you
he	him
she	her
we	us
they	them

Here are the German equivalents in the chart below.

ich—mich	wir—uns
du—dich	ihr—euch
er—ihn sie—sie (no change) es—es	sie—sie (no change) Sie—Sie (no change)

The trick is knowing when to use which word. Whenever you want to refer to the subject of a sentence, use the nominative.

Nominative Examples:

Der Pulli hat viele Farben. (The pullover has many colors).

Er hat viele Farben. (It has many colors).

Willi und ich brauchen Geld. (Willi and I need money).

Wir brauchen Geld. (We need money.)

Accusative Examples:

Timo kennt Nathan Chen. (Timo knows Nathan Chen).

Timo kennt ihn. (Timo knows him.)

Ich sehe meine Eltern. (I see my parents.)

Ich sehe sie. (I see them.)

By using both nominative and accusative pronouns, it makes your German sound more natural.

A: Kennst du meinen Cousin?

B: Sebastian? Ja, ich kenne ihn!

Instead of constantly repeating the word “Cousin,” we replace it with “ihn” (him).

22. Section 2-7

2.7: Future Tense

In section 2.4, you learned the stem-changing verb werden, which means “to become” or “to turn (an age).”

werden—to become, to get (as in “become”)
ich werde	wir werden
du wirst	ihr werdet
er/sie/es wird	sie/Sie werden

Das Wetter wird kalt. (The weather is getting cold.)

Mein Neffe wird sechzehn. (My nephew is turning 16.)

In German, the verb werden is also used as a helping verb to form the future tense. It has the same meaning as English “will.”

Beispiel:

Wir werden am Dienstag nach Europa reisen.

(We will on Tuesday to Europa travel.)

Notice that reisen, to travel, is at the very end of the sentence and NOT conjugated.

- Question 1: Why is reisen not conjugated?
- Answer: Because werden, our helping verb, is conjugated instead. Only the first verb gets conjugated.
- Question 2: Why is reisen at the end of the sentence? It sounds weird that way.
- Answer: Das ist Deutsch! To form the future tense, the second verb always gets kicked to the end of the sentence.

- Comment: But it sounds like how Yoda from Star Wars talks!
- Reply: Yes, it does. Therefore, you will use Yoda as your guide to learn word order in future tense.

www.shutterstock.com · 1956205837

Try to annoy your family and friends by attempting a few English sentences with this word order so that you can get the hang of it in German.

- I will tomorrow to the movies go.
- Ich werde morgen ins Kino gehen.

- Will you me help?
- Wirst du mir helfen?

- He will no vegetables eat.
- Er wird kein Gemüse essen.

Ex. A: Was wirst du machen? Using the cues below, write a complete sentence to tell what the following people will do.

Beispiel: du/ gehen/morgen/ins Hotel
→Du wirst morgen ins Hotel gehen.

1. wir/kochen/Spaghetti
2. er/fahren/nach Kanada
3. sie (sing.)/sehen/Film
4. die Studentin/sprechen/Französisch
5. es/geben/viel Obst
6. ich/lesen/Comichefte
7. du/schreiben/Roman
8. ihr/verstehen/Japanisch

Ex. B: Die Futur! Change the following sentences from the present tense to the future tense, using the helping verb werden.

Beispiel: Ich suche mein Buch.
→Ich werde mein Buch suchen.

1. Wir reisen um die Welt.
2. Unsere Großmutter sucht ihre Brille.
3. Ich trinke keinen Apfelsaft!
4. Mein Onkel und meine Tante frühstücken draußen.
5. Wer braucht mein Auto?
6. Der Lehrer nimmt einen Salat mit Hähnchen.
7. Mein Bruder trägt nur eine kurze Hose.
8. Du isst nur Pizza und Sushi.
9. Man kauft Sandalen und Badelatschen.

Ex. C: Was werden Sie machen? Ask your classmates what they will be doing at the following times? Don't forget to put time before place!

Beispiel: nächsten Sommer

A: Was wirst du nächsten Sommer machen?

B: Ich werde nächsten Sommer nach Florida reisen.

1. am Dienstag

Ex. 2: (Time goal—1:00-1:15)

You have just made a new friend at your school who wants to know all about you and your family. Tell about your family in as much detail as possible.

Ex. 3: (Time goal—1:00-1:30)

You are an exchange student living with a host family in Germany. The family wants to know about your eating habits. Explain to them what you like and don't like to eat and drink.

Ex. 4: (Time goal—1:00-1:30)

You are an exchange student who has accidentally become locked in a classroom at a university in Germany. You don't know the room number but call public safety to describe the room you're in.

Ex. 5: (Time goal—1:00-1:30)

You witnessed a bank robbery. Describe the suspect(s) to the police. Don't forget to tell what articles of clothing they were wearing, including their colors.

Ex. 6: (Time goal—1:00-1:30)

Tell as much as possible about your favorite (or least favorite) family member.

Ex. 7: (Time goal—1:00-1:15)

You live in Germany. Your nosy next-door neighbor asks what you will be doing next summer. Tell her, using the future tense

Ex. 8: (Time goal—1:00-1:15)

The same nosy neighbor wants to know what each member of your family will be doing next summer. Once again, use the future tense to tell her.

Ex. 9: (Time goal—0:45-1:00)

Describe your current schedule of classes. At what times do you have which subjects?

Tips:

- Look back through the chapter to see what you might already know how to say.
- Write/say as much as you can about each topic as it relates to the above scenarios.
- Stick to what you've learned so far; don't worry yet about the grammar topics you haven't learned yet. That will come soon enough!
- Use lots of details. Saying more is always better!

25. Section 3-I

Kapitel 3

In Chapter 2, you continued your study of verbs by learning about stem-changing verbs. You used the stem-changing verb geben, in the expression “es gibt,” which means “there is” or “there are.”

Es gibt einen Fluss in Nordalabama. (There is a river in North Alabama.)

Es gibt ein Meer im Süden. (There is a sea in the south.)

We can also use the verb haben to describe what landmarks certain areas have.

Unsere Stadt hat einen See. (Our city has a lake.)

Das Land hat viele Hügel. (The country has many hills.)

Remember! The direct object, the noun that follows the verb, must be in the accusative case! (i.e. masculine adds -en to the definite or indefinite article.)

der Fluss—river	die Insel— island
das Land—land, country	der Hügel—hill
das Meer—sea	der See—lake
die Stadt—city	die See—sea
das Gebirge—mountain range	das Bundesland—federal state
der Berg—mountain

Ex. A: Beschreiben Sie Ihre Heimat! Describe your homeland. What landscape features are there? Use the verb haben and the expression es gibt to write at least five sentences.

- 3.

- 4.
- 5.

Ex. B: Geographie. Go to Germanzone.org's website and do the following exercises.

- <https://www.germanzone.org/articles-ein-kein-1-geographie/>
- <https://www.germanzone.org/noun-plural-forms-2-geographie/>

liegen—to lie, to be located im Norden—in the north im Süden—in the south
im Westen—in the west
im Osten—in the east

Ex. C: Wo liegt...? Using a map of Europe, describe what the following things are and where they are located.

Beispiel: A: Was ist Spanien?

B: Spanien ist ein Land.

A: Wo liegt Spanien?

B: Spanien liegt im Westen.

1. Finnland
2. Berlin
3. die Nordsee
4. Italien
5. der Rhein
6. die Alpen (plural!)
7. Kreta
8. die Donau
9. Nordrhein-Westfalen

Ex. D: Nicos Weg. Episode 19: In Europa. Watch episode 19 of Nicos Weg and do the online activities. You will review word order and the indefinite pronoun “man.” Don’t forget that German word order can vary as long as the verb comes in second position.

Ich mag—I like
Ich war—I was
Du warst—you were Wir waren—we were

- Man isst Pizza in Italien.
- Pizza isst man in Italien.
- In Italien isst man Pizza.

Note—the verb still comes second!

- <https://www.germanzone.org/germany-states/>

Ex. E: Nicos Weg. Episode 20: Andere Länder. Watch the video and do the online activities. You will review the stem-changing verb sprechen, to speak. Don't forget that its stem changes from "e" to "i" at the du and er/sie/es forms.

<https://learngerman.dw.com/en/andere-l%C3%A4nder/l-37337244>

3.1: Imperativ

In this chapter, you will continue using the same verbs you learned in chapters 1 and 2 to make commands. With the imperative, you can tell people to do things.

Englische Beispiele:

- Go home!
- Do your homework!
- Drink more water!

In all of these examples, the verb comes first. Similarly, the verb comes first in German commands.

Deutsche Beispiele:

- Gehen Sie nach Hause!
- Machen Sie Ihre Hausaufgaben!
- Trinken Sie mehr Wasser!

probieren*—to try something (food, a new sport, hobby, etc.)

Because German has different words for “you” that imply different levels of acquaintance, i.e. du vs. Sie vs. ihr, there will be different forms of commands. We will begin with Sie commands.

Sie-Commands:

How to make a command using Sie :
Step 1: Use the infinitive of the verb
Step 2: Write “ Sie ” after it.

That’s it! Let’s try it with the verb essen.

Sie command with the verb “ essen ”:
Step 1: Use the infinitive of the verb → essen
Step 2: Write “ Sie ” after it. → Essen Sie!

The good news is that there is only one verb with an irregular imperative form: sein–to be.

Sie imperative for sein: Seien Sie!

- Seien Sie glücklich! (Be happy!)
- Seien Sie optimistisch! (Be optimistic!)
- Seien Sie nicht so pessimistisch! (Don’t be so pessimistic!)

Video. Click to see me reteaching imperative for “Sie.”

One or more interactive elements has been excluded from this version of the text. You can view them online

here: <https://una.pressbooks.pub/gr101/?p=587#oembed-1>

Ex. A: Imperativ! Form polite commands out of the cues below. You may need to add definite or indefinite articles or prepositions.

Beispiel: fahren/Vermont

→Fahren Sie nach Vermont.

1. essen/Gemüse
2. sein/ruhig
3. werden/gesund
4. trinken/mehr Wasser
5. lesen/Zeitung
6. wandern/im Park
7. fahren/New York
8. tragen/Jacke

Ex. B: Guter Rat. Read the following situations and respond with appropriate advice in the form of a Sie command. Bonus: Give more than one command as advice!

Beispiel: Ich bin müde.

→Schlafen Sie!

1. Ich habe Hunger.
2. Es ist kalt.
3. Es ist heiß.
4. Ich habe kein Geld.
5. Ich habe keine Katze.
6. Ich vermisse meine Freunde.
7. Es ist langweilig.
8. Ich habe viel Energie!
9. Ich liebe Musik.

How to soften a command:

Sometimes, a command can sound a little too direct. If you want to soften a command and not sound so authoritarian, you can add the word doch or mal. Doch and mal are flavoring particles that can soften a command to make it sound more like a suggestion. As always, you can always add bitte, please, to make a command not so direct.

- Trinken Sie doch mehr Wasser! (You should) drink more water.
- Probieren Sie mal den italienischen Kuchen! Just try the Italian cake!
- Gehen Sie bitte ins Bett. Du siehst müde aus. Please go to bed. You look tired.

Negative Commands:

In order to make a command negative, all you have to do is negate it with nicht or kein. In Chapter 1, you learned that to negate adjectives or adverbs, we use the word nicht in front of them.

- Ich bin nicht pessimistisch! (I am not pessimistic!)

To negate direct objects, nicht comes after the direct object.

- Ich kaufe den Computer nicht. (I'm not buying the computer.)

To negate a prepositional phrase, nicht comes before the preposition.

- Ich bleibe nicht in Spanien. (I'm not staying in Spain.)

To negate indefinite articles, aka forms of the word ein-, we add a "k" to make it kein-.

- Ich esse keine Schokolade. (I eat no chocolate.)

To negate a command, we will use these same rules.

- Seien Sie nicht so pessimistisch! (Don't be so pessimistic!)
- Kaufen Sie den Computer nicht! (Don't buy the computer!)
- Bleiben Sie nicht in Spanien! (Don't stay in Spain!)
- Essen Sie keine Schokolade! (Don't eat any chocolate!)

To soften these commands, add the flavoring particle mal. Flavoring particles have no English equivalent, but they do change the feeling of the command.

- Essen Sie mal keine Schokolade! (Mal softens the command.)

To try to persuade someone with your command, you can add the flavoring particle doch.

- Seien Sie doch nicht so pessimistisch! (Doch tries to convince!)
- Bleiben Sie doch nicht in Spanien!

And, as always, it never hurts to use the word bitte, please, in a command.

- Kaufen Sie den Computer bitte nicht!

Ex. C: Bitte nicht! Using the cues, make negative commands to tell your partner not to do the following things.

Beispiel: sein/faul

→Seien Sie nicht faul!

1. schwimmen/am Montag
2. wohnen/in Tokio
3. tanzen/in der Disco
4. singen/Rap-Musik
5. tragen/Jacke

6. kochen/Suppe
7. lesen/Zeitung
8. fragen/Professor
9. fliegen/nach Russland

Ex. D: Lieber Freund...ich habe ein Problem! Lesen Sie die Situation. Schreiben Sie ein paar Vorschläge. Tell the person what to do or NOT to do in order to solve his problem, using polite commands.

ein paar—a few der Vorschlag—suggestion
liebe/lieber—dear (beginning of a letter or e-mail)

Hilfe—help

Lieber Freund,
Ich habe ein Problem. Meine
Freunde sagen, ich bin total ungesund...aber ich mache nicht sehr gern Sport. Hilfe!
--Ungesunder Mensch

Lieber "Ungesunder Mensch"

Ex. E: Touristen. You have just met a German tourist in your area who wants to know what he should do here. You may want to use some of the landmarks at the beginning of the chapter.

- Use the polite imperative (since you're talking to a stranger).
- Use flavoring particles doch and mal.
- Use both positive and negative commands.

besuchen—to visit
bei—at

Beispiel: Essen Sie doch bei Ricatonis. Essen Sie nicht bei McDonalds.

Ex. F: Auf Deutsch! Translate the following commands into German, using the Sie-imperative. Add flavoring particles as necessary.

schnell—fast
schneller—faster
laut—loud
lauter—louder spät—late später—later
warten—to wait

1. Swim faster!
2. Don't work so long!
3. Ask your professor.
4. Read the newspaper.
5. Speak louder!
6. Don't drive so fast!
7. Don't sleep so late!
8. Stay home today.
9. Wait here.

Wir-Imperativ: Let's _____!

We can also form the imperative with the wir-form of the verb. In English, this translates to the “let’s” form.

- Let's eat!
- Let's discuss the problem.
- Let's earn some money.

To make this form in German, we put the verb first and THEN the pronoun wir.

besprechen—to discuss verdienen—to earn

- Essen wir!
- Besprechen wir das Problem.

- Verdienen wir Geld.

Wir-imperative: INFINITIVE + WIR.

Just like Sie-Commands, there is only one verb that is irregular—sein.

- Seien wir nicht so kritisch! (Let's not be so critical!)
- Seien wir pünktlich. (Let's be punctual.)

Video. Click the link to watch me reteaching “let’s” commands.

„Gehen wir _____.“

You can combine several verbs together with the verb gehen, especially when using the wir-imperative.

Often, you will see verbs listed together with gehen.

- schwimmen gehen—to go swimming
- tanzen gehen—to go dancing
- einkaufen gehen—to go shopping

To make a wir-command out of them, we will conjugate the last verb.

- | | |
|------------------------|--------------------|
| • Gehen wir schwimmen! | Let's go swimming! |
| • Gehen wir tanzen! | Let's go dancing! |
| • Gehen wir einkaufen! | Let's go shopping! |

You might see phrases listed like this as well with a noun or prepositional phrase in front and a verb infinitive after it.

- Fußball spielen—to play soccer
- ins Bett gehen—to go to bed
- Musik hören—to listen to music

Make sure to conjugate the verb and put the rest of the phrase after that.

- | | |
|-------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| • Die Kinder spielen Fußball. | The children are playing soccer. |
| • Du gehst ins Bett. | You're going to bed. |
| • Markus hört Musik. | Markus is listening to music. |

Ex. G: Machen wir das! With a partner, take turns suggesting that you do the following activities, using the wir-imperative.

Beispiel: schwimmen gehen

A: Gehen wir schwimmen! (Let's go swimming!)

B: Ja, machen wir das! (Yes, let's do that!)

ODER

B: Nein, lieber nicht. (No, I'd rather not.)

1. Nudeln kochen
2. ins Restaurant gehen
3. Karaoke singen
4. spazieren gehen
5. die Landschaft malen
6. Fotos machen
7. nach Hause laufen
8. mit den Haien surfen
9. eine Pizza bestellen die Landschaft—landscape, scenery mit—with der Hai—shark

bestellen—to order

Ex. H: Wir planen eine Party! Sie planen eine Party mit Ihren Freunden. Machen Sie viele Vorschläge mit dem Imperativ.

- Was werden wir kochen?
- Was werden wir tun?
- Was für Musik werden wir hören?
- Was werden wir spielen?
- ...usw

was für—what type of Ex. I: Auf Deutsch! Übersetzen Sie ins Deutsche!

übersetzen—to translate

1. Let's play tennis!
2. Let's work at home today.
3. Let's order chicken and a salad.
4. Let's visit our grandparents.
5. Let's not wait here.
6. Let's go shopping!
7. Let's go jogging.
8. Let's not stay in Europe.

9. Let's be healthy!

Ex. J: Planen wir unseren Tag! Sie haben heute frei. Planen Sie Ihren Tag mit einem Partner. Benutzen Sie den wir-Imperativ mit den folgenden Verben.

frei haben—to have the day off benutzen—to use folgend—following

(Hint: make a short list of verbs you want to use first!)

Ex. K: Wiederholung! Using your answers to Ex. J, write a brief paragraph summarizing your plans in the future tense, which you learned in chapter 2. For example, if you and your partner said, “Reisen wir nach England!” you would restate that in the future tense as “Wir werden nach England reisen.”

Video: We now interrupt this section on the imperative to suggest the following Easy German video on gestures in German! The first few are similar to English.

One or more interactive elements has been excluded from this version of the text. You can view them online here: <https://una.pressbooks.pub/gr101/?p=587#oembed-3>

Ex. L: Video. Nicos Weg. Episode 21: Was ist das? Watch episode 21 and do the online activities. You will review how to form plurals, which you learned in Chapter 1.

<https://learngerman.dw.com/en/was-ist-das/l-37368285>

Du Commands:

When giving a command to someone that you know very well and to whom you would normally say “du,” you will need to form the commands differently. The good news is that the “du” form of commands is very close to how we form them in English, i.e., with only the verb.

Geh nach Hause!	(Go home!)
Kauf das Brot.	(Buy the bread.)
Halt !	(Stop!)
Schlaf nicht so lange.	(Don't sleep so long.)
Sei doch nicht so spät!	(Don't be so late!)

Notice that we use the verb stem to form the du-command. Just like in English, the verb should come first.

Reminder: What is a verb stem?

gehen—to go

Verb stem: geh-

Ending: -en

Geh nach Hause!	(geh-en)
Kauf das Brot.	(kauf-en)
Halt !	(halt-en)
Schlaf nicht so lange.	(schlaf-en)
Sei doch nicht so spät!	(sei-n)

Also notice that, unlike Sie commands, we don't use the word “du.”

If the verb stem ends in -d- or -t-, it often adds an “e” to the end of the command.

Arbeite!	(Work!)
Finde die Kinder.	(Find the children.)
Warte auf mich!	(Wait for me!)

...HOWEVER, in everyday speech, it sometimes gets dropped.

Wart' auf mich!

Ex. M: Mach das! Roleplay: You are a babysitter for a young child. Tell him what to do, using the du-imperative. Don't forget that you can always add the flavoring particles doch and mal, as well as bitte.

Beispiel: eine Jacke tragen

→Trag doch eine Jacke!

1. Hausaufgaben machen
2. ins Bett gehen
3. Milch trinken
4. lernen
5. hier bleiben
6. die Katze suchen
7. halten
8. schlafen
9. warten

Ex. N: Auf Deutsch! Übersetzen Sie ins Deutsche!

1. Drive home.
2. Don't sleep so long.
3. Please wait here.
4. Go swimming.
5. Don't come home so late.
6. Don't be so lazy.
7. Dance!
8. Cook something.
9. Don't travel to Cuba.

Ex. O: Ich habe ein Problem. Give advice, using the du-imperative.

1. Ich habe Durst.
2. Ich vermisse Deutschland.
3. Ich spreche kein Spanisch.
4. Ich bin nicht fit.
5. Ich liebe Herr der Ringe und Harry Potter.
6. Ich brauche mehr Bücher.
7. Ich verstehe kein Chinesisch!
8. Ich habe Hunger.
9. Es ist zu kalt.

In Chapter 2, you learned about stem-changing verbs, such as lesen and nehmen, whose stems change from e→i or ie. The stems of these verbs also change when conjugated...but only for du and er/sie/es.

Du liest die Zeitung. (e→ie)

Er nimmt das Schnitzel mit Pommes frites. (e→i)

To make an informal command, you will need to keep this stem-change. In the chart below, you can compare the infinitive with the conjugated form and finally the command form.

Verb infinitive	Conjugated for “du”	Command form
lesen—to read	Du liest .	Lies!
nehmen—to take	Du nimmst .	Nimm!
sehen—to see	Du siehst .	Sieh!
sprechen—to speak	Du sprichst .	Sprich!
geben—to give	Du gibst .	Gib!
essen—to eat	Du isst .	Iss!

Lies keine Comichefte. (Don't read any comic books.)

To sum it up, the command should not have the -st verb ending on it.

This comic was created at www.MakeBeliefsComix.com. Go there and make one now!

mir—to me

In Chapter 2, you also learned about stem-changing verbs that change from a→ä. The good news is that these verbs don't change the stem when forming the du-imperative.

Fahr doch nicht so schnell! (Don't drive so fast!)

Lauf mal nach Hause. (Run home.)

Schlaf doch nicht so lange! (Don't sleep so long!)

Ex. P: Mach es heute! Your friend says she will do the following things later. Using the informal imperative, tell her to do them today.

Beispiel: Ich koche die Suppe am Freitag.

→Koch die Suppe doch heute!

1. Ich arbeite morgen.
2. Ich gehe am Donnerstag spazieren.
3. Ich lerne für das Quiz nächste Woche.
4. Ich mache meine Hausaufgaben am Sonntag.
5. Ich esse gesund am Wochenende.
6. Ich lese den Roman nächste Woche.
7. Ich gehe am Donnerstag einkaufen.
8. Ich fahre am Mittwoch zu Emma.
9. Ich repariere den Computer nächsten Monat.

Ihr Imperative:

To give a command to two or more people who you know very well, i.e. friends, classmates, family, you will form the imperative from the ihr-conjugation of the verb. Just like English, the verb will come first, and the word “ihr” will not be included.

Step 1: Conjugate the verb for “ihr”→ihr geht

Step 2: Get rid of the word “ihr”→geht

Finished command: Geht!

Beispiele:

- Geht nach Hause! (Go home!)
- Sprecht doch auf Deutsch. (Speak in German!)
- Gebt mir mal den Salat. (Give me the salad.)

Don't worry about stem-changing verbs; remember—they only stem-change at du and er/sie/es, NOT ihr.

geradeaus—straight ahead links—left rechts—right

nach links—(going) to the left nach rechts—(going) to the right in der Nähe—nearby, in the proximity in diese Richtung—(going) in this direction

auf der rechten Seite—on the right side

auf der linken Seite—on the left side

um die Ecke—around the corner über die Ampel—across the traffic light

die Kreuzung—intersection

weit weg—far away

nah—close

When asking for directions,

you can phrase these questions using German that you already know.

- Ich suche die Apotheke. I'm looking for the pharmacy.
- Gibt es hier einen Supermarkt? Is there a supermarket here?

Don't forget that the direct object will go in the accusative case, i.e. masculine gets an extra -en.

To give directions, use the imperative.

- Gehen Sie geradeaus. Go straight ahead.
- Fahren Sie nach links. Drive to the left.
- Laufen Sie in diese Richtung. Run/walk in this direction.

If you know the person well, you can use an informal du-command.

- Geh geradeaus.
- Fahr nach links.
- Lauf in diese Richtung.

If you want to suggest to your group of friends to go in a certain direction, you can always use the wir-command form.

- Gehen wir geradeaus. Let's go straight ahead.
- Fahren wir nach links. Let's drive to the left.
- Laufen wir in diese Richtung. Let's run/walk in this direction.

If you want to tell someone to go past something, use the following construction with an...vorbei, "past."

- Gehen Sie an „Moes“ vorbei. Go past „Moes.“

Ex. T: Wir fragen nach der Richtung. Using the destinations on the same floor as your classroom, give directions on how to get there.

Beispiel: die Toilette

A: Gibt es hier eine Toilette?/Ich suche die Toilette.

B: Ja, die Toilette ist nah. Gehen Sie geradeaus. Dann gehen Sie nach links. Die Toilette ist auf der linken Seite.

26. Section 3-2

3.2: The Twenty-Four-Hour Clock

In Chapter 2, you learned how to tell time informally, i.e. among friends and family.

- Es ist zehn vor neun. It is ten before/until nine.
- Es ist halb drei. It is two thirty.
- Es ist elf nach sieben. It is eleven after seven.

However, in German-speaking countries, you will often see time written out in the twenty-four-hour clock. You will see official time on TV schedules, flights, movie times, train schedules, etc. German does not use am and pm as in English. Instead, it continues counting the hour after 12 noon to show that the time is pm.

To tell time on the twenty-four-hour clock, read the time out from left to right. When you come to the colon, replace it with the word “Uhr.”

Beispiel: 8:42 am → Es ist acht Uhr zweiundvierzig.

If the time is pm, add twelve to the hour.

Beispiel: 4:25 pm

Step 1: $4 + 12 = 16$

Step 2: 16:25

Result: Es ist sechzehn Uhr fünfundzwanzig.

Question: What if it's midnight? Is that zero o'clock?

Answer: Yes!

Beispiel: 0:00 → Es ist null Uhr.

Beispiel: 0:17 → Es ist null Uhr siebzehn.

27. Section 3-3

3-3: Der-words vs. ein-words

In Chapter 1, you learned how to distinguish between the definite article (der/die/das) and the indefinite article (ein/eine).

Masculine: der Pulli→ein Pulli

Feminine: die Bluse→eine Bluse

Neuter: das T-shirt→ein T-shirt

Note that neither masculine nor neuter add any endings for ein-words. This also applies to possessive adjectives.

Masculine: der Bikini→ihr Bikini (no ending)

Feminine: die Mütze→seine Mütze (adds -e)

Neuter: das Hemd→mein Hemd (no ending)

Plural: die Schuhe→deine Schuhe (adds -e)

In Chapter 2, you continued by adding the accusative case definite and indefinite endings.

Review: The accusative case is used for direct objects. The only thing that changes is masculine, which adds an extra -en to the definite or indefinite article.

Masculine: Ich habe einen Cousin.

Feminine: Wir besuchen unsere Nichte.

Neuter: Er kennt mein Kind.

Plural: Die Arbeiter produzieren die Sandalen.

You have learned all of the ein-words so far, i.e., words that have the same pattern of endings as “ein/eine.”

⇒NEU: There are a few more words that follow the same pattern as the definite article (der/die/das/den). They are listed below with a dash after them to show where the new ending will go.

Der-words:
dies-	this
jed-	every welch-	which all-	all

HOW TO USE THESE DER-WORDS:

- Look at the definite article. Ex. der See (the lake)
- Put the letters you see at the end of it on the new der-word.
- dieser See (this lake)

Examples with dies- in the nominative case:

Masculine: der Anzug→dieser Anzug (this suit)

Feminine: die Jacke→diese Jacke (this jacket)

Neuter: das Kleid→dieses Kleid (this dress)

Plural: die Kleider→diese Kleider (these dresses)

Examples with jed- in the nominative case:

Masculine: der Baum→jeder Baum (every tree)

Feminine: die Universität→jede Universität (every university)

Neuter: das Dorf→jedes Dorf (every village)

Examples with welch- in the nominative case:

Masculine: der Hut→welcher Hut (which hat)

Feminine: die Jeans→welche Jeans (which jeans)

Neuter: das Kino→welches Kino (which movie theater)

Plural: die Zeitungen→welche Zeitungen (which newspapers)

In short, dies-, jed-, welch-, and all- will have the exact same ending as whatever der/die/das/den has.

HOWEVER...all- will usually be plural.

Beispiel: Alle Studenten haben Hausaufgaben.

WHY? Because it would sound really strange to say, “All Student have homework.”

Other der-words that have grown somewhat obsolete:

So far, you have been using dies-, jed-, welch-, and all- as der-words. There are a few more that function the same way, but they have been used less often over the past thirty years than previously.

- manch- many (a): Manche Kinder lernen Deutsch.
- jen- that: Jene Professorin geht nach Hause.
- solch- such: Solche Studenten arbeiten nicht.

Like all-, manch- and solch- are most often used in the plural forms

For now, it will be fine just to recognize them when you see them. You will see them more often in older texts, such as fairy tales or older German literature.

Ex. G: Nominativ vs Akkusativ. Complete the following exercises, using both der- and ein-words. You will first need to determine whether the word is in the nominative or accusative case. Fill in the blanks with the correct form of “dies-“.

1. _____ Student wohnt in der Schillerstraße.
2. Der Tourist kauft _____ Buch über die Schweiz.
3. Wir verkaufen _____ Auto nicht.
4. _____ Universität ist sehr alt.
5. _____ Politiker sprechen mit uns.
6. Die Polizei hat _____ Mann verhaftet (arrested).

9. Der Bus ist pünktlich.
 - a. kein-
 - b. dies-
 - c. jed-

Rewrite each sentence, replacing the word in bold print with the noun in parenthesis, making any necessary changes to the der- or *ein-*word.

10. Jeder Schüler muss vorsichtig sein.

- a. Studentin
- b. Tourist
- c. Krankenschwester

11. Welches Kind steht an der Ecke?

- a. Lehrerin
- b. Hund
- c. Professorinnen

12. _____ Mann und ich gehen gern ins Kino.

15. _____ Film hast du im Kino geguckt? Star

Wars oder Star Trek? (welch-)

Ex. H: Was soll ich kaufen? Tell your partner which option to choose (or not to choose!). Because these will be commands, you will need to use the imperative. Make sure that your direct object is in the accusative case. Remember, nicht will go AFTER the direct object and in front of prepositional phrases. Add one or two sentences after your command to explain why your partner should or should not choose this option.

Beispiel: kaufen

A: Kauf diese Jacke! (points to yellow jacket)

B: Aber warum denn?

A: Sie ist neu.

ODER

A: Kauf diese Jacke nicht! (points to gray jacket)

B: Aber warum denn nicht?

3.4: WAVEM Words–Adjectives of Indefinite Number

When specifying quantities, we often use words that don't give an exact number, such as “many,” “few,” or “some.” German also has adjectives of indefinite number. In this book, we will use the acronym WAVEM to remember them.

WAVEM

W—wenig/wenige	little/few
A—andere	other
V—viel/viele	much/many
E—einige	some
M—mehrere	several

The WAVEM words that you see above that end in -e are plural. That means you will only use them in front of plural words.

- W: Wenige Kinder machen gern Hausaufgaben. (Kinder = plural)
- A: Andere Unis sind nicht so preiswert. (Unis = plural)
- V: Viele Studenten lernen eine Fremdsprache. (Studenten = plural)
- E: Ich finde einige Kurse langweilig. (Kurse = plural)

- M: Meine Großeltern kaufen mehrere Bücher. (Bücher = plural)

However, you will notice that there are two variations of viel/viele and wenig/wenige. How do we know which one to use?

viel—much	wenig—little viele—many	wenige—few

The ones that end in -e will still be plural. We use viel or wenig when we are talking about collective items.

What is a collective item? Things that we usually don't count out separately, such as rice, money, time, or fish. In English, we use "much" to say that we have a lot of these items.

How much money do you have?

(Not, "how many money," which would sound strange.)

Similarly, in German, we do the same.

Wie viel Geld hast du?

(Because „Geld“ is not plural).

However, if I want to say I have a lot of things that are typically plural in English, we will use viele in German.

Wie viele Freunde hast du?

(Because „Freunde“ is plural).

It works the same with wenig/wenige. Use wenig for plural items; use wenig for collective items.

Ich habe wenig Geld. (I have little money.)

Ich habe wenige Freunde. (I have few friends.)

9. Es gibt _____ Probleme im Leben.
10. Wie _____ Autos besitzt deine Familie?
11. Zu _____ Brot ist nicht gesund.
12. In Japan isst man _____ Fisch und _____ Reis.

Glück—luck
belegen—to take (a course) im Leben—in life
besitzen—to own

Ex. B: Was essen Sie? Essen Sie viel/viele oder wenig/wenige?
Trinken?

Beispiel: Ich esse viel Brot. Ich esse wenige Chips...usw.

Brot	Obst	Kuchen	Orangen
Reis	Gemüse	Salat	Trauben
Äpfel	Bananen	Suppe	Kohl
Bohnen	Fleisch	Fisch	Brokkoli
Pizza	Salz	Pfeffer	Erdbeeren
Chips	Wasser	Milch	Kaffee

Ex. C: Wo isst man...? Using the list from the previous exercise, answer the following questions.

1. Wo isst man viel Reis?
2. Was isst man in Amerika?
3. Wer isst viele Gummibären?
4. Wo isst man viel Salat?
5. Wo isst man viel Fleisch?
6. Was isst man in Deutschland?
7. Was isst man in Frankreich?
8. Was isst man auf Hawaii?
9. Was essen Vegetarier?
10. Was essen Kinder?
11. Was trinken Studenten?
12. Was trinkst du?

Ex. D: Auf Englisch! Übersetzen Sie ins Englische!

1. Unsere Eltern kaufen viel Obst und Gemüse.
2. Mein Neffe trägt viele Pullis.
3. Der Student trinkt wenig Milch.
4. Die Kinder haben andere Freunde.
5. Mehrere Cousins besuchen uns nächste Woche.
6. Einige Cousins kommen aus Europa; andere wohnen in Asien.
7. Frau Bauer, warum essen Sie wenig Joghurt?

8. Der Professor schreibt mehrere Bücher über Kunst.
9. Die Lehrerin liest einige Romane von Jane Austen.

Ex. E: Auf Deutsch! Übersetzen Sie ins Deutsche!

nach der Schule—after school

1. Many students drink a lot of coffee.
2. Other students drink too little water.
3. Many mountains are in the west.
4. Some mountains are in the east.
5. Marianne buys too much pasta.
6. My brother eats little meat, but I eat a lot of meat.
7. Mrs. Piepke, do you have other children?
8. Few teenagers work after school.
9. Several tourists like to hike in Germany.

Ex. F: Was gibt es bei Ihnen? Using the landscape words at the beginning of Chapter 3, describe your hometown or state? What is there a lot of or little of?

Beispiel: Es gibt viele Autos. Es gibt wenige Bäume. Es gibt viele Seen...usw.

29. Section 3-5

3.5: Modal Verbs

In English, we often combine two verbs together in one sentence.

I can speak German.

I want to visit my grandfather.

I should do my homework.

In German, we call such verbs as “can,” “want to,” and “should” modal verbs.

Ich kann Deutsch sprechen.

Ich will meinen Großvater besuchen.

Ich soll meine Hausaufgaben machen.

SOMETHING TO NOTE: In German, the last verb gets kicked to the end of the sentence and is NOT conjugated.

Make a verb sandwich. The bread is like your two verbs. Put any direct objects and time expressions in between them.

“A Great Sandwich” by jamesjyu is marked with CC BY-NC-SA 2.0.

Subject/Verb 1/Everything Else/Verb 2

Whenever German has two verbs in the same sentence, the second one will ALWAYS go at the end of the sentence. You also did this in Chapter 2 when learning about the future tense, which used the helping verb werden + infinitive.

Ich werde nächsten Sommer nach Europa reisen.

Modal verbs function the exact same way. Another good thing is that most of them at least begin with the same letter in English or sound similar.

Modal verb	English definition
können	can, to be able to
müssen	must, to have to mögen	to like (to)
sollen	should, supposed to wollen	want (to)
dürfen	may, to be allowed to
möchten	would like (to)

All of the modal verbs are irregular, which means their conjugations must be memorized.

BUT they all have a pattern!

können—can, to be able to

THIS SIDE IS IRREGULAR	THIS SIDE IS NORMAL
ich kann (no ending!!!)	wir können
du kannst	ihr könnt
er/sie/es kann (no ending!!!)	sie/Sie können

PATTERNS:

- The left side of the conjugation will always be irregular, BUT it will end up looking or sounding more like English.
- The right side of the conjugation will be regular, just like any other regular verb.
- “Ich” and “er/sie/es” will always mirror each other and have the same conjugation with no ending.
- The left side usually has no umlaut and changes the vowel completely.

If you can keep these patterns in mind, you will learn the modal verbs very quickly!

Watch Learn German's video to see the verb können being retaught.

One or more interactive elements has been excluded from this version of the text. You can view them online

here: <https://una.pressbooks.pub/gr101/?p=596#oembed-1>

Ex. A: Was kannst du machen? Using the verbs below, make some sentences using the verb können about what you can and cannot do. Then move on to your family members and friends. Don't forget that the second verb must be at the end of the sentence.

Beispiel: kochen

→Ich kann sehr gut kochen.

→Mein Freund kann nicht kochen.

→Meine Tante und mein Onkel können gut kochen.

Common mistake:

Students often want to conjugate both verbs in the sentence. The only verb that should be conjugated here is the modal verb, aka the first verb. The second one will be in the infinitive form, aka the unconjugated form.

- kochen
- tanzen
- singen
- malen

- schreiben
- Basketball spielen
- joggen
- Deutsch sprechen
- fahren
- schlafen

Omission of the infinitive:

Sometimes, sentences with können leave out the second verb, especially if it can be easily figured out what the verb would be.

Kannst du Deutsch sprechen?

Kannst du Deutsch?

It looks like the second example would translate to “Can you German?”, but since German is a language, it is pretty obviously that the verb will have something to do with speaking. Therefore, we can leave the verb out. We often do this in English as well, though usually only when the verb is already known.

Can you come to the party?

Yes, I can. (Notice that we have no 2nd verb here!)

This comic was created at www.MakeBeliefsComix.com. Go there and make one now!

Ex. B: Können Sie Deutsch? Ask your classmates if they can speak the following languages. To practice both sides of the conjugation table, today you will use the Sie-form, treating your partner as a new acquaintance. If you do not speak the language, remember that you will negate it with kein to say that you speak no Italian, etc.

Beispiel: Italienisch

A: Können Sie Italienisch?

B: Ja, ich kann Italienisch.

ODER

B: Nein, ich kann kein Italienisch.

ODER

B: Ja, ich kann ein bisschen Italienisch.

A: Ich kann auch Italienisch.

ODER

A: Ich kann auch kein Italienisch.

- Englisch
- Französisch
- Russisch
- Spanisch
- Japanisch
- Deutsch
- Chinesisch
- Portugiesisch
- Schwedisch

Ex. C: Bericht. Using the results of ex. B, write a brief paragraph that sums up your partner's language abilities.

Ex. D: Ein neuer Job! You have just applied for a new job. Make a list of your capabilities to impress the new company so that you have a better chance to get the job.

1. Ich kann sehr gut Englisch (sprechen.)
2. Ich kann...
- 3.
- 4.
- 5.
- 6.

tippen—to type

Ex. E: Ein neuer Job, Teil 2. Using your answers to ex. D, ask your classmates if they have the same capabilities that you do. When you are finished, answer the question, “Wer bekommt den Job?”

Beispiel: #1 “Ich kann sehr gut Englisch.”

bekommen—to receive, get

A: Können Sie sehr gut Englisch?

B: Ja, ich kann sehr gut Englisch.

ODER

B: Nein, ich kann kann Englisch.

Use the modal verb müssen to express that you must do something or that you have to do something. Note that the left side drops the umlaut, but it looks a lot like the English word “must.”

müssen—must, to have to

THIS SIDE IS IRREGULAR	THIS SIDE IS NORMAL
ich muss (no ending!!!)	wir müssen
du musst	ihr müsst
er/sie/es muss (no ending!!!)	sie/Sie müssen

COMMON MISTAKE: Students often forget that English sometimes has more than one way to express one idea. For example, the sentence below could be translated two ways.

Ich muss Hausaufgaben machen.

(I must do homework.)

OR

(I have to do homework.)

It's not always a good idea to translate word for word. Feel free to rephrase the sentence in a similar English meaning before expressing in German.

Just as with können, the final infinitive can be omitted if it is very obvious based on context.

Wir müssen morgen nach Japan [fliegen/reisen/segeln.]

(We must [fly/travel/sail] to Japan tomorrow.)

To say that you want to do something, use the modal verb wollen.

wollen—to want to

THIS SIDE IS IRREGULAR	THIS SIDE IS NORMAL
ich will (no ending!!!)	wir wollen
du willst	ihr wollt
er/sie/es will (no ending!!!)	sie/Sie wollen

COMMON MISTAKE: Although this verb looks like the English verb “will,” it means “to want to.” You learned “will,” aka future tense, in Chapter 2.

- Ich will nach Deutschland reisen. (I want to travel to Germany.)
- Ich werde nach Deutschland reisen. (I will travel to Germany.)

How to propose to someone in Germany:

A: Ich will _____, aber ich muss _____.

B: Ich auch. Ich muss auch _____.

ODER

B: Ja, ich will auch _____.

- Hausaufgaben machen
- schwimmen gehen
- Videospiele spielen
- Schokolade essen
- gesund essen
- den ganzen Tag schlafen
- eine Reise nach _____ machen
- in Deutschland studieren
- arbeiten
- einen Job finden
- mehr Gemüse essen

Ex. L: Was wollen Sie machen? You are a newspaper reporter taking a survey. Ask your classmates whether they and their families want to do the following things.

der Mitbewohner/die Mitbewohnerin—roommate

Beispiel: Sie

To say that you should do something or are supposed to do something, use the modal verb sollen. This verb doesn't change the vowel at all, but it still leaves off the ending of the ich and the er/sie/es form. As always with modal verbs, make sure that the infinitive goes at the end of the sentence.

sollen—should, supposed to

You have already learned how to say that you like to do certain things by adding the word gern to any conjugated verb.

Ich spiele gern Videospiele und Golf.

(I like to play video games and golf.)

There is also a verb that means “to like” in German. Here it is below.

mögen—to like

THIS SIDE IS IRREGULAR	THIS SIDE IS NORMAL
ich mag (no ending!!!)	wir mögen
du magst	ihr mögt
er/sie/es mag (no ending!!!)	sie/Sie mögen

In the example above, we could have easily said it with mögen to have the same meaning.

Ich mag Videospiele und Golf spielen.

This is grammatically correct, HOWEVER, the verb mögen is mostly used to say that you like things or people, without an extra verb on the end.

A: Magst du Pizza mit Oliven?

B: Nein, ich mag keine Oliven.

A: Mein Bruder und meine Schwester mögen Pizza mit Thunfisch.

This is similar to other examples of modal verbs in which the final infinitive is omitted. If we had used a final verb in the conversation above, it probably would have been essen, since that's what usually happens to pizza.

SUMMARY:

- Use gern + verb when you want to say that you like to DO something.
- Use mögen when you want to say that you like SOMETHING or SOMEONE. (Although if you forget and use a verb at the end, you will be understood!)

Beispiel: Werner/Obst (nein)

A: Mag Werner Obst?

B: Nein, er mag kein Obst.

1. die Kinder/Brokkoli (nein)
2. Brigitte und Sabine/Salat (ja)
3. du/Eis (?)
4. unsere Professorin/Brot (ja)
5. unsere Großeltern/Wassermelone (nein)
6. die Katze/Fisch (ja)
7. Ronja/Käse (nein)

Ex. Q: Gastfamilie. Sie sind Austauschstudent/Austauschstudentin und wohnen bei einer deutschen Familie. Erklären Sie, was sie gerne oder nicht gerne essen. Verwenden Sie das Modalverb „mögen.“

Beispiel: Ich mag Mineralwasser. Ich mag keinen Salat...usw.

To say that something is allowed or not allowed, you will use the modal verb dürfen.

dürfen—may, to be allowed to

THIS SIDE IS IRREGULAR	THIS SIDE IS NORMAL
ich darf (no ending!!!)	wir dürfen
du darfst	ihr dürft
er/sie/es darf (no ending!!!)	sie/Sie dürfen

Like a lot of other modal verbs, dürfen changes the vowel in the left side of the conjugation but remains normal during the right side.

COMMON MISTAKE: Students often forget that dürfen can be translated to mean both “may” and “allowed to.”

Wir dürfen hier fahren.

(We’re allowed to drive here.)

(We may drive here.)

The indefinite pronoun man (you, one, they, people) is often seen together with this verb. It will be conjugated the same as er/sie/es.

2. Was dürfen Kinder nicht alleine machen?
3. Was dürfen Kinder nicht essen?
4. Was dürfen Kinder nicht trinken?
5. Was dürfen Kinder lesen?
6. Welche Fernsehprogramme dürfen Kinder gucken?
7. Welche Fernsehprogramme dürfen Kinder nicht gucken?

das Fernsehprogramm—TV program
gucken—to watch

This last modal verb, möchten, is actually not a modal verb, but we often pass it off as one because it acts just like one and it is very practical when ordering food in a restaurant.

möchten—would like

THIS SIDE IS (slightly) IRREGULAR	THIS SIDE IS NORMAL
ich möchte	wir möchten
du möchtest	ihr möchtet
er/sie/es möchte	sie/Sie möchten

NOTE: There is an ending on ich and er/sie/es. This verb is completely regular except for the fact that er/sie/es does not end in -t.

Look at the following exchange.

A: Guten Tag. Was möchten Sie trinken?

B: Ich möchte ein Glas Wasser.

A: Und was möchten Sie essen?

B: Ich möchte das Schnitzel mit Pommes.

Ordering in a restaurant is as easy as filling in the blanks of the sentence, “Ich möchte _____.”

- QUESTION: Can't I just use wollen to order my food? As in, “Ich will eine Pizza“?
- ANSWER: Well, yes, there's nothing grammatically wrong with that, but it's a lot more polite to say, “I would like a pizza,” than “I want a pizza.”

As for omitting the final verb, it can go either way. If it is implied, feel free to leave it out. If not, put it at the end of the sentence.

die deutsche Küche—German cuisine haben viele Fußgängerzonen. Hier dürfen keine Autos fahren. Man kann ohne Probleme durch die Stadt spazieren.

Es gibt auch viele leckere Restaurants und Cafes, wo man deutsche Spezialitäten probieren kann. Jede deutsche Stadt hat seine eigene Spezialität. In Aachen, zum Beispiel, findet man Printen. In Nürnberg ist Wurst sehr beliebt—die nürnberger Rostbratwurst. Sogar Bier kann eine Spezialität sein; in Köln trinkt man Kölsch. Für Vegetarier gibt es auch viel zu probieren; ungefähr acht Millionen Deutsche essen kein Fleisch. Viele Restaurants haben vegetarische Gerichte.

Man soll die vielen alten Schlösser nicht vergessen! Einige, wie Neuschwanstein in Bayern, sind nicht so alt. Andere stammen aus dem Mittelalter. Oft sieht man in Deutschland moderne Häuser und alte Gebäude nebeneinander. In Deutschland sieht man neue Technologie und alte Kultur jeden Tag.

1. Beschreiben Sie die Landschaft in Deutschland.
2. Wie kann man in Deutschland reisen?

30. Section 3-6

3.6: Wissen vs. kennen

In chapter 2, you learned the verb kennen, to know or to be familiar with. We use this verb to talk about knowing people or being familiar with a film, city, or movie.

A: Kennst du meinen Mitbewohner?

B: Nein, ich kenne ihn nicht.

A: Aber du kennst den Film Goodbye Lenin, oder?

B: Ja, natürlich kenne ich ihn!

A: Mein Mitbewohner war in einer Szene im Film.

This conversation was about knowing a person and being familiar with a film. Therefore, we can use the verb kennen here.

In German, there are two verbs that mean “to know.” The second of these, wissen, is used to talk about knowing facts.

Wir wissen die Antwort.

Ihr wisst, wo wir wohnen.

Wissen Sie, wann der Film beginnt?

Knowing the answer or where someone lives or when a film begins are all facts. Therefore, we use wissen instead of kennen.

Wissen is also slightly irregular and has the exact same pattern as modal verbs; the left side of the conjugation is irregular, but the right-hand side is completely normal.

wissen—to know (a fact)

THIS SIDE IS IRREGULAR	THIS SIDE IS NORMAL
ich weiß (no ending!!!)	wir wissen
du weißt	ihr wisst
er/sie/es weiß (no ending!!!)	sie/Sie wissen

If you can remember the pattern of the modal verbs, it will be easier to learn the conjugation of wissen.

THE GOOD NEWS—this is the last irregular verb in present tense in the German language! From here on out, they are all regular.

Beispiele: wissen (fact) oder kennen (familiar with)?

A: Kennst du meine Schwester?

(Knowing a person, being familiar with person)

B: Ja, ich kenne sie schon lange.

(Knowing a person, being familiar with person)

A: Sie wohnt in Stuttgart. Kennst du die Stadt?

(Being familiar with city)

B: Nein, nicht so gut, aber ich weiß, wo Stuttgart liegt.

(Knowing where the city lies, is a fact.)

A: Ich weiß, sie vermisst dich. Du sollst sie irgendwann mal besuchen.

(Knowing that she misses the person is a fact.)

B: Ich weiß ihre Adresse nicht.

(Knowing an address is a fact.)

HINT: If the sentence has a comma and what looks like another sentence after it, it's probably "wissen." i.e. Sie wissen, was die Kinder machen.

SUMMARY:

- kennen = to know (a person); to be familiar with (a city, a book, a film, etc.)
- wissen = to know a fact (conjugated like a modal verb)

- <https://learngerman.dw.com/en/deutschtrainer/c-56705009>.

The following vocabulary lessons have content from this chapter and future chapters. Each exercise starts with a brief video and has interactive exercises for practicing vocabulary. If you want to do a lesson again, simply hit “reset” next to the exercise and try it as many times as you want.

→ DuoLingo—German

- <https://www.duolingo.com/learn>.

This site offers mostly vocabulary practice and translation exercises. You will need to set up an account (free). The vocabulary does not necessarily follow the exact order of this textbook, but it will definitely build up your vocabulary, which will help you later on. For example, the first exercises cover food, which we will do in Chapter 2.

→ Mondly—German
